STATE-WIDE RECOUNT ORDERED

'Give Us Time,' British Plea

Today

Nearly All About Debts.
Greece Is Quite Frank.
Some Economy at Home.
Ford's Quick Recovery.

—By Arthur Brisbane—

HEARST RANCH, SAN SIMEON, Cal., Nov. 30—Greece does not beat about the bush or ask Uncle Sam to forget her debt. She borrowed twelve and a half millions in 1927, and in good diplomatic language says she will not pay it. You will soon hear from others.

Germany is all mixed up on government matters, no one thus far able to form a cabinet. But she has Von Hindenburg at the helm, and is rid of reparations payments. It might be worse.

There is little doubt that Congress will say, "Pay or default." Senator Capper of Kansas says, "The people in my State will never stand for modification or cancellation." You would not either, if you had been selling wheat at the F. O. B. Kansas farm price.

Senator Hiram Johnson says: "They can and must pay."

They, at least the big ones, can pay, for they have the gold. But there is no "must." They can also default, and there would be no war about it.

The American Federation of Labor convention in Cincinnati yesterday denounced private workmen's compensation companies as "parasites, cancers and racketeers," and demanded a State fund compensation plan.

Senator Wagner, of New York, demands that men employed on government construction projects shall work only 30 hours a week. That would mean five days of six hours each, or any other arrangement of days and hours agreed upon.

Contractors should be consulted as to distribution of hours, in connection with effective use of building materials and machines. Let machines work as MANY hours, men as FEW hours, as possible.

In days to come a six-hour day will seem long.

It is not very long since women in New England mills worked from daylight to dark. They would have worked longer, had there been electric lights, then.

Admiral Nogano, chief of Japan's naval delegation at the disarmament conference, should be imported to deliver lectures on national common sense in Washington, D. C.

Says he, to the League of Nations and disarmament gentlemen:

"Japan will not accept or agree to anything that may weaken the defensive power or decrease the security of Japan."

Washington believes that England will make the $95,000,000 payment due next month, "if the United States insists." Payment would be made in bar gold, enough ounces of gold to equal in value $95,000,000, at our dollar price of gold.

It is a business matter with England. Her prime minister's financial advisers believe that default would be more disastrous than payment of the gold bars.

Governor Roosevelt, at Warm Springs, Ga., is working on problems of national economy. "Drastic consolidations within the Navy Department" are included in his program. Governor Roosevelt knows the navy, having been Assistant Secretary, and believes that economies are possible, without weakening our "first line of defense."

Some day, when airplanes and submarines are recognized as our first line of defense and 90 per cent of all our defense against aggression from across the water, national defense will not cost so much.

Learn from Henry Ford that when you live temperately, wisely, as he has done, there is not much to fear from surgery. Only three days past a major surgical operation, his temperature, pulse and respiration are already normal, and he is safely past the period during which "post-operative infection" develops in some cases.

Mr. Ford is in a hurry to get back to work, and his doctors promise to release him next week, which is good news for the whole country.

Another day of Wall Street sobs, with more "new low prices," for various things. Silver was cheaper than ever, but you might see a sudden change there. The British pound fell down again, lower than ever. Even the powerful French franc was wobbly, in spite of the big operation that officially cut off 80 per cent of its value, and despite the huge gold treasure in the Bank of France.

Stocks, strangely, did not reflect other conditions. Wall Street has supped so full of horrors, since 1928, that no little scare has much effect.

The grand champion lamb at the Los Angeles Stock Show sold today for $4.10 per pound, interesting to sheep farmers everywhere. They would be more interested to hear of average

Milwaukee, Nov. 30 (AP)—Eleven hunters nad been killed as the 10-day deer hunting season closed today. Three others died of heart attacks induced indirectly by incidents of the hunt and many were nursing injuries.

Rollins, Noted Lifer for Murder, Is Pardoned

After serving 15 years of a life sentence for murder, Charles B. Rollins of Dorchester was pardoned by Governor Ely and his council today. The pardon will take effect immediately.

The action climaxed a fight which began more than a decade ago under the supervision of Charles C. Beebe of Wellesley, wealthy retired manufacturer, and Rev. George W. Sargent, retired minister, also of Wellesley.

Rollins was found guilty of the murder of Edward T. Foley, Dorchester chain store manager, in February, 1917. His brother, George, was sentenced to life imprisonment the same month for the murder of Ordway T. Hall, another manager of a chain store near the store conducted by Foley.

At the Council hearing today Atty. Thomas C. O'Brien, former district attorney of Suffolk County, appeared for Rollins. He declared there had always existed "grave doubt" as to the guilt of Rollins and pointed out that Mrs. Mary Arnold, the only identifying witness, once testified she was "not sure" Rollins fired the fatal shot.

Testimony at previous hearings for commutation of Rollins' sentence were read, including that of Atty. William R. Scharton, counsel for Jesse Murphy, now a lifer in Michigan state prison.

Murphy once confessed that he, not Rollins, killed Foley.

He Borrowed His Alimony, Court Told

The alimony payments made to Florence B. Pearson of Lynn were contributed to her divorced husband, Edward Pearson of Melrose, by his friends, as loans, to save him from contempt charges.

This was revealed today in Essex County Probate court, when Pearson filed a petition to have a decree ordering payment of $100 monthly to his wife modified.

In his petition, Pearson said that he had to borrow money from friends to pay the alimony.

PICK SLIPS AND 2 NEARLY DIE

An icepick that slipped and punctured a pipe nearly cost the lives of an 88-year-old invalid husband and his wife today in Allston and drove more than three-score other dwellers in the apartment house to the street.

The puncture released a flood of sulphur dioxide fumes which overcame Mrs. Nellie Gibson, 59, after she had shouted for help from the window of her apartment in Commonwealth ave.

George Gibson, the aged husband, collapsed in the bedroom where he had been preparing to take a bath.

Someone telephoned police and fire departments and while they were racing to the building a physician was summoned.

Firemen quickly ran a ladder to the second floor window of the four-story building, crashed in windows to air the apartment and entered with gas masks.

Police, firemen and doctor worked over Mr. and Mrs. Gibson for some time before they were revived.

Standard Oil Cuts Gasoline Prices

New York, Nov. 30 (AP)—Standard Oil Company of New York today announced immediate reductions in gasoline in parts of its territory. At Buffalo the tank car price of U. S. motor gasoline was reduced half a cent a gallon and the company's own brand one-quarter cent.

Tank wagon service station prices were reduced a cent at Buffalo. In Providence, R. I., and Haverstraw, N. Y., they were reduced half a cent.

Chamberlain Announces in Commons That Cabinet Finishes Work on Document

London, Nov. 30—England is sending another note to Washington today, urging postponement of the $95,550,000 debt instalment due Dec. 15, Neville Chamberlain, Chancellor of the Exchequer, told the House of Commons this afternoon.

The cabinet finished writing it at a two-hour session this morning and it will be published here and at Washington in a day or so.

Mr. Chamberlain sai [redacted] no truth in reports th in bar gold is being shi United States in conne the debt.

FRENCH PAYMENT N

Those urging further delay point out that Great Britain can hardly make the $95,550,000 payment to the United States on December 15 unless France pays the installment she owes on her war debt to this country.

If she receives a respite from the United States, observers declared, Great Britain would gladly waive the French payment. If it becomes necessary to insist upon the payment from France, however, fears are expressed that the French Chamber of Deputies will insist upon reopening the Lausanne agreement and again demand reparations from Germany.

GOLD DEPOSIT URGED

Meantime, there is much speculation as to what the British cabinet so far has decided should be comprised in the new note to Washington.

RECORD TIDE PERILS BIG SHIPS HERE

Thousands See the Ferry Slips Flooded, Property Damaged; Seas Lash the Coast in Gale

Lashed to a fury by a 40-mile gale, heavy seas today pounded the North and South shores, halting traffic, and flooding cellars, while an abnormally high tide, estimated at 13 feet, threatened serious damage to several ships tied up at Boston piers.

All along the Boston waterfront, thousands gathered to watch the highest tide in years lift ships almost to street level, while crews [redacted] to keep mooring ng under the oded, causing assengers and ave. bridge, rough, rode almost as high as the bridge level.

DAMAGE ALONG SHORE

The Metropolitan blvd., in Winthrop, was strewn with rocks and seaweed, and that part of it running to Beachmont was closed to traffic.

Nearly 400 pupils in the Shirley st. school, at Winthrop Beach, were marooned for over an hour when water surrounded the school, and were unable to go home for lunch.

In Beachmont, the high tide overflowed the road, and flooded the playground of the Louis Pasteur school. At Point of Pines, the street were strewn with rocks and cellars flooded.

Winthrop was forced to put on a force of 25 extra men and seven trucks to keep the streets running off Shore drive clear of debris tossed up by the sea.

RAILROAD THREATENED

The Winthrop Beach station of the narrow gauge was surrounded by water, and it was feared that the entire roadbed in the vicinity would be inundated.

In Nantasket, Green Hill, Neponset and Dorchester streets were flooded to a depth in some places of two feet. The road between Nahant and Lynn was awash and several buses were stalled.

At South Ferry, many foot passengers were glad to ride in a police patrol, returning from East Boston, as the water was ankle deep.

Rep. Thomas Carroll of Revere demanded that Governor Ely send engineers to Revere to make a survey preliminary to demanding the building of a new sea wall at Beachmont.

At Hough's Neck, many cottages were flooded.

Parts of Wollaston, principally marsh lands, were also flooded.

At Truro, the summer cottage of Osborn Ball of Boston tumbed into the sea when the roaring surf undermined the cliff on which it stood. Several nearby cottages faced a similar fate.

All along the Cape shipping fled for shelter, several vessels putting in at Provincetown harbor.

The weather bureau attributes the high tide and destructive surf to a storm which started yesterday near Bermuda and which moved northeast today. While the storm hit only a small portion of Maine, the sea was terrifically agitated off the coast, causing heavy swells.

New Foreign Loans vs. War Debt Payments

SAN SIMEON, Calif., Nov. 29, 1932.

To the Editor of the Boston Evening American:

THE House of Morgan is one of the greatest firms of American bankers. It is also the fiscal agent of Great Britain in this country.

The House of Morgan was reported in the newspapers of November 24th ready to make a large loan to England to help stabilize the pound sterling.

The House of Morgan received millions of dollars through the Federal Reconstruction Finance Corporation and that corporation was created by Congress to stabilize business in America and not to help stabilize the British pound.

Furthermore, if and when the House of Morgan makes its large loan to England it will undoubtedly expect to have the loan repaid and it will expect the payment to be IN FULL and it will expect to receive the PREVAILING RATE OF INTEREST and receive that interest PROMPTLY.

There will be no moratoriums on the Morgan loan, no reductions, no cancellations.

England will not repudiate the Morgan loan nor any PRIVATE LOAN.

MORATORIUMS, reductions, cancellations and repudiations are only for Uncle Santa Claus, only for the government and the taxpayers of the United States.

Foreign nations have been consistently taught by American expatriate financiers and by a subservient and spineless Federal Administration that they really do not have to pay their loans to the people of the United States—That Uncle Sam is actually Uncle Sap and that the whole cost of the European war can properly and profitably be unloaded onto the backs of the worn and weary American taxpayers.

If the newly-elected Congress is not only Democratic but also properly patriotic it will pass a law that no loans by American banking or other business institutions to foreign enterprises can be made without THE KNOWLEDGE AND CONSENT OF THE GOVERNMENT OF THE UNITED STATES and that no loans can be made to foreign governments UNTIL THE WAR DEBTS OWED BY THOSE NATIONS TO THE WHOLE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES SHALL HAVE BEEN PAID.

Women's Screams Rout Back Bay Burglar

A boudoir burglar who cried in one apartment, "Where is she?" invaded four apartments in the Back Bay early today, but in each place was frightened away before he could get any loot.

Screams of women drove him from two rooms, while in another the male occupant rose from his bed to do battle, but the burglar was too nimble and dived out the window through which he had entered.

Mrs. Lauren Cranston of 70 Fenway, whose apartment is on the first floor with a window opening on the portico-entrance, awoke just before dawn to see a man bending over her dresser and fumbling in a drawer where she had placed her rings and jewelry.

Her screams awoke her husband and sent the intruder scuttling out the window. When he reached the sidewalk he began a sedate walk in an effort to avoid suspicion.

Two doors below, the burglar had attempted an hour earlier to enter the apartment of Mr. and Mrs. George H. White at 74 Fenway.

White, who is general passenger agent for the Mooremack Steamship Lines, woke as the burglar was crawling in through a window. White jumped out of bed to give battle and the burglar dropped back to the ground and fled.

A similar defeat was met by the burglar at the apartment of Miss Pearl S. George, 38, in Audubon rd. She awoke in time to see him hanging half in and half out the window, and when she screamed, he gave up and ran.

The fourth apartment entered was that of Joseph Gentile at Huntington ave. and Hemenway st. Gentile heard the intruder and jumped out of bed, but the burglar, crying "Where is she?", hurriedly slipped out the window and was swallowed in the night.

Motorcycle police and cruiser cars rushed to the apartments, but no trace of the burglar was found.

BUCKLEY AND SWIFT GIVEN NEW CHANCE

State-Wide Recount Ordered of Ballots for Lieutenant-Governor, State Secretary

State-wide recounts of the ballots cast for lieutenant-governor and secretary of state, petitioned for by the Democratic state committee and John E. Swift, were ordered today by Secretary of State Frederic W. Cook.

This sets a precedent in Massachusetts. No recount involving the entire State has ever been held.

Cook took this action immediately following the publication today of the official canvass by the governor and council of the votes cast for presidential electors, congress, the state ticket, county officers, and on referendum questions.

BACON 4813 AHEAD

This canvass disclosed that the two petitions for recounts come within the law which authorizes a statewide re-check of figures in contests where the plurality between opposing candidates is less than 1 per cent of the total number of ballots cast for a particular office.

The official count for these two offices is as follows:

LIEUTENANT-GOVERNOR

Bacon (R.)	744,738
Swift (D.)	739,925
Bacon's plurality	4,813

SECRETARY OF STATE

Cook (R.)	735,380
Buckley (D.)	727,492
Cook's plurality	7,888

The figures compiled by the Governor and Council in both these contests include the results of all recounts so far taken and a ruling has been made that in places where there have been recounts those figures will stand as final.

WARNER LEAD 23,509

There will be no recount of the ballots cast for attorney-general, as the final figures show that Joseph E. Warner (R.), incumbent, won by a plurality of 23,509 over his Democratic opponent, former Senator John P. Buckley of Charlestown.

The final tabulation showed:

The proposal contained in Referendum question No. 1 on the ballot to authorize the practice of chiropractic was rejected by an overwhelming vote of: No, 602,520, Yes, 350,994.

GARNER CONFIDENT OF DRY REPEAL VOTE MONDAY

120 REPUBLICANS READY TO ASSENT, SAYS SPEAKER

Washington, Nov. 30 (AP)—Speaker Garner today at a press conference said indications were more favorable for the House to adopt the Democratic repeal proposal Monday.

Although the Vice-President-elect declined to predict adoption of the measure, he said that information from Rep. Milligan of Missouri, assistant Democratic whip, showed a swing among the Democrats for it.

Garner said he was "pretty certain we will have a vote Monday."

"The gentlemen who talked about postponing action have about decided that the vote might as well come Monday, because they are going to have to vote on it some time," the speaker went on, adding that he had "some definite information of a swing" for the resolution.

Two Republican wet leaders have told him, he said, they were satisfied that probably 120 Republicans would vote for outright repeal and submission to state conventions for ratification as provided in the Democratic measure. He did not name his informants.

As to whether Southern Democrats would support repeal, Garner said "quite a number are going to vote for resubmission who will support prohibition in their own states," and "that appears to me to be consistent."

In the event the judiciary committee does not report the measure, Rep. Rainey of Illinois, the Democratic leader, expects to offer it.

Garner said he had not seen enough of the members to ascertain whether the repeal resolution would be adopted.

"If we can't get the two-thirds vote necessary, well, that's that," he declared.

"We might as well pass on it now as some other time.

"If we adopt it, we will send it to the Senate in plenty of time for action at this session."

Garner said he hoped that beer legislation could be brought before the House during the second week of Congress, with a view to disposal before the Christmas holidays. He expressed the wish that the Christmas holidays be reduced to about three days.

BRITISH CHIEFS BEG FOR MORE

the document simply argues the case for postponement, leaving final decision on whether Britain will or will not pay to be made after the United States has replied.

In general, the communication was expected to base its immediate theme on the idea that the whole world—including the United States—would be benefited if the December payment were passed.

The British case for revision of the whole war debt structure, was expected to be stressed in the strongest possible terms.

It was suggested that Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, already has convinced the government of the feasibility of paying out of the bank's gold reserve, although treasury experts insist the risks of payment are greater than the risks of default.

Herriot Upheld for New Negotiation With U. S.

Paris, Nov. 30 (AP)—The Chamber of Deputies finance committee, at the request of Premier Herriot, voted today to adjourn consideration of Louis Marin's resolution that France shall pay no more in war debts than she receives in reparations.

Government representatives are trying to get Marin to withdraw his resolution for the present so the Government may have time for further negotiations with the United States.

A woman's patriotic organization asks our government to bar Prof. Albert Einstein from this country, on the ground that he is "affiliated with more Communist and Anarchist groups than Stalin himself."

Mrs. Randolph Frothingham, who makes the request, wants Trotzky barred, also, if he tries to come in.

This will surprise Prof. Einstein, mildly, and perhaps cause him to develop new theories on the relativity of common sense.

To clear up such situations, some ladies' organizations should list the things that foreign visitors, and natives, may and may not believe.

"No church has a right on the air to broadcast special religious programs," said Robinson, speaking on behalf of an application to increase the facilities of Station WORC-WEPS of Worcester, Mass.

"Let them do the same thing as department stores—go to the commercial stations and buy time or else get it free.

"This commission has no right to allocate valuable facilities belonging to all the people to any group for use as a personal mouthpiece to build up an organization or to accumulate a fortune."

The Worcester station had applied for the facilities of three New York city stations—WCDA, WMSG and WBNX—and of WAWZ, operated by the "Pillar of Fire," a religious organization of Zarephath, N. J.

The leaders of the "Pillar of Fire" organization are Bishop Alma White, the founder, and her two sons, Arthur K. and Ray B. White. It is a separate religious denomination.

FEDERAL CUTS WAITING FOR HOOVER

Congress to Delay Economy Moves Until It Hears His Recommendations

Washington, Nov. 30 (AP)—Upon President Hoover's recommendations to Congress next week rests the course of new effort to reorganize the government in the interests of economy.

Chairman Cochran of the House expenditures committee, which handles reorganization legislation, said today he is "waiting to see what President Hoover proposes."

"I understand he has asked Budget Director Roop for estimates as to what some consolidations would save," Cochran said. "Last session we gave him the power to consolidate. As soon as we see his message, my committee will meet and study his recommendations.

"The time to do any reorganizing is before Democrats get in the hundreds of useless offices and beg to be left there. We'll lose a little patronage if we do reorganize, but we'll save a lot of money."

Cochran said he doubted that his committee would approve a bill to consolidatae the army and navy this session. A bill to that end was defeated by the House last winter.

There developed, too, from another front a drive for economy. The joint Congressional committee on veterans legislation was called to meet tomorrow.

The Chamber of Commerce of the United States and the National Economy League, for instance, propose to reduce veterans' benefits around $450,000,000; the American Legion wants to increase them about two and a half billion dollars in the next ten years.

Roosevelt Studies Farm Relief, Budget

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 30 (AP)—A renewed study of farm relief and budget balancing and visits by Senator Long of Louisiana and Bennett C. Clark, senator-elect from Missouri, preceded talks by Franklin D. Roosevelt today with the men who will handle his farm relief program in the House.

Long and Clark arrived together from New Orleans and went to see the President-elect before his morning swim and exercising in the patients' pool.

M'ADOO IN PLEA FOR WINE GROUP

Los Angeles, Nov. 30 (AP)—In a letter to John N. Garner, Speaker of the House of Representatives, William Gibbs McAdoo, Democratic Senator-elect from California, declared "formidable opposition" will be raised to the proposed beer bill unless provision is made for the inclusion of light wines in the measure.

McAdoo said grape culture is the second largest agricultural industry in California and it "has suffered terribly for years and has now reached a point where it is almost in extremis." He said inclusion of light wines in the bill is essential to grape growers.

Special Protection Given Him After Threats; Robbers Get Heavy Sentences

New Bedford, Nov. 30—Four out of five men tried for robbing a Taunton bank at gunpoint were convicted today and received heavy sentences as police sought a phantom sniper believed to have attempted the life of the prosecutor, Dist. Atty. William C. Crossley.

In a sealed verdict, reached early today and opened in superior court, Frank Karlonis of Brookline, the fifth man tried, was acquitted.

Albert Crimmins of South Boston was sentenced to 15 to 18 years, James Hall of Stoughton was given 12 to 15 years, Daniel Scannell of Dorchester was given 15 to 18 years and William Harvey of Dorchester was sentenced to 18 to 20 years. All were found guilty of armed robbery.

The four men were alleged to have robbed the Mechanics Co-operative Bank of Taunton of $7700 on October 17, and during today's court proceedings the courthouse was heavily guarded by State troopers and New Bedford police.

The phantom sniper who is believed to have tried to kill Crossley also fired a bullet through the windshield of a second car two nights before, it was made known today as state troopers guarded the prosecutor's office.

Yesterday a bullet crashed through the windshield of Crossley's car at this spot, but only the chauffeur, James Shea, was in the machine.

LINKED TO BANK CASE

The possible attempt to kill Dist. Atty. Crossley is believed to be as a result of his relentless prosecution of the five youths charged with armed robbery of the Taunton bank.

The district attorney, it is believed, was expected to be a passenger in his car yesterday after close of court, when the jury had been given the case. Contrary to his usual custom of leaving for Fall River at the close of court during the previous five days of the trial, he remained in the courthouse cleaning up some detail matters.

OVERHEARS THREAT

Threats have been made to free the men who were on trial for the bank robbery, but the threats merely resulted in the district attorney prosecuting the case more vigorously.

Yesterday, while he was making his final argument in the court, demanding conviction and long terms, a state police officer heard a man standing in a corridor group mutter:

"Listen to that ——. He'll be sorry for that yet."

The officer thought at the time that it was merely the remark of a disgruntled sympathizer and a remark without sinister import. Following the report of the shooting he recalled it and told the district attorney of the incident.

Night Hop Over New York Thrills Mrs. Roosevelt

New York, Nov. 30—Describing her experience as a "trip through fairyland," Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt last night took her first night trip over New York City in an airplane. The next first lady of the land acted as hostess to a "flying party" of friends in a giant 18-passenger plane. She was aloft 55 minutes.

Mrs. Roosevelt

As she alighted from the plane, Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"It was an unforgettable experience. You know, I once flew over an Arizona desert by night, but this trip leaves me without words to describe its magnificence. What strange adventures one encounters during a lifetime."

Two Lowell Girl Thumbers Get Jail Terms

Lawrence, Nov. 30—Miss Lila Dolly, 19, of Marshall st., and Miss Anna McDonald, 20, of Albion st., both of Lowell, appealed sentences to the Woman's Reformatory before Judge Chandler in District Court, when they were found guilty on charges of idle and disorderly conduct.

They were held in $200 for the grand jury.

According to Methuen police, the girls had been complained of several times because of their activities in thumbing rides between Lawrence and Lowell.

The girls, according to the police, have been making "shuttle" trips between the two cities, sometimes travelling back and forth as many as six times in a day. They told police their first trip out of Lowell on the day they were arrested was with a policeman.

Steam Geyser Thrills Crowd in P.O. Square

Steam, pouring from a manhole, halted traffic in Postoffice sq. today, and drew large crowds to the fringes of the square to look on.

Engineers said a water main burst and the cold water, shooting upward, passed over underground steam pipes which changed the water into steam before it reached the surface.

The water was turned off and the manhole cover was lifted to relieve the pressure, but the steam continued to pour out.

At last a funnel was fitted over the manhole so that the steam passed into the air above the traffic, permitting cars to move again

FIGHT STAGED IN BROOKLINE AT MIDNIGHT

A midnight battle between a wealthy husband on one side and his wife and son on the other, in the apartment of a Brookline girl, was revealed today with disclosure that Vernon H. Moss, shoe manufacturer, has charged his son, Vernon, Jr., with assault and battery.

The girl occupant of the apartment was a horrified witness of the encounter, according to young Moss.

Another onlooker, according to the youth, was a private detective who accompanied Mrs. Moss and the son to an apartment in Marion st., Brookline, and allegedly found the elder Moss visiting the girl.

DEFENDED SELF, SAYS SON

Young Moss will appear in Brookline district court tomorrow and has engaged Atty. Edward F. Flynn, former assistant district attorney of Essex County, to defend him against his father's assault and battery complaint.

"I struck at my father, but only in self-defense," the youth said. "We fought a while and finally I knocked him down, but I fell myself and got up just in time to save my mother from being hit with a smoking stand. It grazed her shoulder."

He said he had instructed Atty. Flynn to fight his father's charge through to the highest court, if necessary.

Corroborated by his mother, the Winthrop youth told of watching the apartment on three nights, the third and last being Saturday. He with his mother and the detective watched for more than three hours in the bitter cold that night, he said.

GIRL "SO SORRY"

Young Moss said he went to the rear door of the apartment. It was locked.

"I smashed in the door," he said. "As I did so, the girl went to the front door and admitted my mother and the detective."

The manufacturer, who is also known as an inventor in the shoe industry, was fully clad and so was the girl, according to the son.

"I'm so sorry, Mrs. Moss, I didn't know he was married," said the girl, according to young Moss and his mother.

The fight followed and furniture was broken, with all three participants rubbing bruises when it was over and the elder Moss demanding to be taken to a hospital for treatment for his nose, which was bleeding.

At about this time five Brookline police entered, but no arrests were made, it being left to the participants, if they had any complaints, to swear out summonses in court. This was done by the father against his son.

DIVORCE DENIED THEM

"We tried to get a policeman to accompany us to the apartment," said the Winthrop youth. "The lieutenant at the Brookline police station said he couldn't do that, but that he would instruct his men in a cruising car to keep an eye open. They did and heard the noise."

Mr. and Mrs. Vernon H. Moss, Sr., have been married 24 years and formerly lived in Newburyport and Haverhill. Mrs. Moss was formerly well known as a violinist. Her husband is 55. Each sought a divorce in 1929, but both were denied, after testimony about cocktail drinking and other incidents.

AL SAILS OVER HIGH C'S TO STOP THE SHOW

Signor Alfredo Smith absolutely stood 'em on their heads in his concert debut in New York last night, and today he's the talk of the nation. Sing? Why, boy, he's revolutionized the art of singing! In his first recital he got more plaudits than Caruso

N.Y. Music Critics Swoon as Al Hits High D

New York, Nov. 30 (AP)—The music critics were in a lather of laudation today over the debut of a promising new singer—Mr. Alfred E. Smith of the Brown Derby Smiths.

Mr. Smith gave his singing voice the air for the first time publicly late yesterday at the weekly community sing, a benefit affair. He said his participation was "just a happy thought that dawned on me."

"Il Signor Alfredo Smeet," as one critic in a swoon of excitement called him, sailed right up to a challenging height without shifting gears, and his voice rose above those of the 600 others who had joined in the chorus.

HE GOT VOLUME

The critics thought it was great. Even headline writers became ecstatic and called him "The Happy Warbler."

One customer said:

"He took that D like he took Massachusetts in 1928."

Herr Smith presented a limited repertoire from some of the early music hall composers. His "wow" number which spilled the critics out of their seats was "The Sidewalks of New York." He seemed to put everything he had into it. As the reporter for the Times put it:

"The Nightingale of Oliver Street" threw into his work all he had in voice, spirit and body—especially the last mentioned. He kept time with his head and his hands. When he wanted volume he bent over, stooped down and then jumped like a cheer leader. It was a good idea. He got volume."

An unfortunate phase of the affair was the failure of the critics to agree on the range of the artist's voice. The Times called him "a promising tenor." The Herald-Tribune referred to him as the "Brown Derby Baritone."

NO HOTHOUSE SINGER

Critics on other papers had not quite made up their minds.

The critic of the Times was very definite about it, however. He said:

"It was clearly a tenore leggiero on the more tender lines, but a tenore robusto when he soared easily above the crowd. . . . Mr. Smith's tonal attack and rhetorical phrasing . . . were not those of a novice. He was none of your sheltered, pampered tenors of hothouse songbirds."

Some persons pretended to observe a nervousness as the Tenore Leggiero advanced to begin his first number, but this probably was political jealousy. There was some misunderstanding between the singer and the orchestda, as a result of which the orchestra was away to a flying start before the Signor Smith was in his proper stance.

But it did not seem to bother him. He merely turned to the orchestra and said:

The hint had its effect, for on the next attempt Mr. Smith and the orchestra got away to practically a simultaneous start. From there on it was Smith in a romp.

GLAD THEY LIKED IT

When the "Sidewalks" was over, Signor Smith modestly moved as though to call it a day, but the applause was uproarious. Cries for "encore" filled the air, no end. The tenore leggiero, with artistic appreciation of the needs of the occasion, returned and launched into a number beginning:

"Oh, the night that I struck
New Yawk,
I went out for a quiet walk." . . .

His auditors were puzzled. Here was a new Al Smith. Maybe it was "Alfredo Smeet." They were unfamiliar with the song. But they recognized it quickly enough when he reached the chorus with its:

"The Bowery, the Bowery."

Before the recital was over, Mr. Smith had sung the "Sidewalks" thrice, and as he departed amid such "bravos" as Caruso might have envied, he twisted the cigar in his mouth, grinned happily, and said:

"I'm glad you liked it."

SOCIETY GIRL RECITES HER ROMANCE

Faces Riding Master, Claimed as Father of Her Unborn Baby, in Court

New City, N. Y., Nov. 30 (INS)—Charlotte Gibson, Rockland County society girl, today faced the man the state is prosecuting for her.

Taking the stand as the first witness against Sidney Herbert Homewood, riding master, she began the exciting drama of her episode with her former lover. She "told all" without a quaver.

Charlotte took the stand after Dist.-Atty. Henry V. Stebbins' charge she yielded to Homewood because he made it appear her submission was a part of their troth.

Homewood listened with stolid face while Stebbins told how he had won the confidence of the society girl by informing her he had broken his engagement to Miss Elizabeth Bishop of Wheaton College.

MET FIVE YEARS AGO

Miss Gibson told how she met Homewood at his riding academy five years ago, where she came with her mother for a lesson. She looked steadily into Homewood's drawn face as the district-attorney inquired:

"Is this the man?"

"Yes," she declared.

The only time her voice trembled was when she said "Yes, sir" to the question, "Are you married?" She is to be a mother in three weeks.

She went into great detail about the lessons she took in jumping last year, referring always to the man she claims is the father of her unborn child as "the defendant." She rode one of his horses in a horse show at Cresskill, N. J., she narrated. Then again in Stamford, Ct., a year ago last July—and at this show Miss Gibson herself made reservations at the hotel for Miss Elizabeth Bishop, the girl to whom Homewood was then engaged.

STALIN'S WIFE IN DEATH---WAS SHE POISON PLOT VICTIM?

Did the wife of Joseph Stalin die of poison intended to paralyze the iron hand behind Red Russia's five-year-plan? Did she give her life to save her husband's? In spite of official censorship and mystery, these questions are being asked in Moscow about the death of Comrade Nadezhda Sergivna Alliluieva, pictured here on her flower-banked death bed previous to burial in hallowed ground in the former Convent of New Virgins. Officially, the 30-year-old daughter of a Tiflis locksmith died after a "long illness." However, rumors have been revived that for years she tasted all food prepared for her husband several hours before he ate it. Did poison kill her? With Chopin's famed march being played instead of Red music, and with thousands of troops in line, her funeral was most impressive, but the actual location of the grave of "the most faithful of Soviet women" has been kept a secret. WHITE HOUSE IS HUNTING FOR NEWS LEAK

Washington, Nov. 30 (INS)—A new "White House leak investigation" is in progress.

At least two of President Hoover's triumvirate of secretaries were engaged today in attempting to run down the source of a seemingly routine story about executive office affairs.

The green carpets are being worn threadbare as employe after employe was called to task in an effort to ascertain what each might know about this new "loophole" in the closely meshed screen the Hoover aides have woven about their "chief."

Lawrence Richey, principal secretary to the President, and reputedly "closest man in the world" to Mr. Hoover, was leading the last minute inquiry into loyalty.

PAY CUT STORY

Theodore G. Joslin, secretary in charge of press relations, was aiding in the quiet investigation.

The offending story—carried into virtually every newspaper in the United States—had to do merely with the fact that all employes on the executive office payroll must suffer a three-and-a-half-day furlought each month for the remainder of the fiscal year, in addition to their 8.2 per cent pay cut, because Congress had lopped some $6000 or more from the bedrock of the White House apropriation bill.

There are only 29 persons on the actual payroll of the executive offices. These include the three secretaries, the literary assistant and all that group of executive clerks, stenographers, file clerks and messengers who have made up the White Houes personnel for years.

In addition—but still included in the payroll of 29—are four or five stenographers who were brought into the White House personally by the President and his secretaries.

FURORE IN WHITE HOUSE

The remaining employes at the executive office are "borrowed" from other departments and draw their pay out of the departmental appropriation from which they first were hired. These employes are not affected by the additional payless holiday.

Publication yesterday that an extra furlough had been ordered at the White House created a furore underneath the usual serenity that envelopes the upper end of Pennsylvania ave.

Richey and Joslin renewed previous orders that "all publicity" should emanate from Joslin's office, and Richey is inquiring into the source of what newspaper reporters accepted as a run-of-mind story.

Democrats from all sections of the Commonwealth will be in attendance on December 10 at the dinner in Hotel Copley-Plaza in honor of Miss Mary Ward of Jamaica Plain, national committeewoman from this state.

MAYOR CURLEY IS HOST

Gov. Stanley C. Wilson, of Vermont, will be Mayor Curley's guest at City Hall on December 8. On that evening he will be guest speaker at Boston Public Library.

GAS RATES PROTESTED

Petitions are now being circulated in Hyde Park by residents who are seeking an investigation by the Massachusetts Public Utilities Commission of rates charged gas consumers in that district. Petitioners headed by Representative Joseph Logan declare that although they are citizens of the city of Boston they pay gas rates far in excess of prices charged residents of other sections of the municipality.

ONE BERTH VACANT

One desirable position that has been hanging fire at the State House for some months now is that of executive secretary to the Industrial Accident Board. The position was made vacant through the death of Robert E. Grandfield. So far, the civil service commission has received no request from the board to establish an eligible list for the vacancy.

ALL SEEKING JOBS

A good idea of the pressure for jobs during the present economic depression is gained by a perusal of the records of the civil service commission. Since February 25, the date that Paul E. Tierney became commissioner, a total of 156,611 applications have been filed in that department.

LAWYER FLAYS PENSION FUND OF PHONE CO.

A pension fund set up by the N. E. Telephone & Telegraph Co. for its employes was attacked today by Atty. Wycliffe C. Marshall before the Public Utilities Commission, where he represented the Boston Central Labor Union in a fight for lower phone rates.

Marshall said the employes have no legal assurance that they would ever benefit by the trust fund, and that meanwhile it represents an operating charge reflected in higher rates. The fund amounts to several million dollars.

Under an agreement made with the Bankers Trust Co. in 1931, when the trust fund was established, the company can direct where the fund shall be invested. He asserted that the company has ordered it invested in telephone stock.

"Another feature of the trust fund agreement," he said, "is that it can be terminated at any time by the telephone company. It's not really a trust fund at all.

"In these days of corporate greed, anything can be done. There is nothing to prevent all the money going back to the company or being paid out as dividends."

Marshall also attacked the rental charge of 25 cents a month for the so-called French phones. He said that at this rate the instrument is paid for in two years. The charge should at least be abolished after two years, he said.

Although the company did not reduce its rates, it spent $1,076,000 in changing over to the dial system, Marshall said. Of this amount $653,000 was spent in Boston. The company would be employing 5324 more operators today but for this change, he added.

Marshall asked that the commission exclude from the rate base the cost of property bounded by Franklin, Congress and Pearl sts., Boston, which the company bought but has never used for telephone purposes.

500 Are Delayed by Boston-Maine Tieup

More than 500 commuters were delayed from one to two hours today when a Fitchburg-to-Boston local, due at 8:45 a. m., North Station, was crippled by a severed air-brake line.

VOICE OF BROADWAY

By LOUIS SOBOL

To Francois Villon!

Come, Villon, where is Katherine,
The pretty troll, and fat Margot?
Colette, who knew so sweet a sin?
Aye, where is now the Winter snow?

I have so much to tell you of,
And you so much to tell to me,
We two shall sit and talk of love,
Throughout a white eternity.

Yes, Francois, ladies still are kind
And lips so soft, so warm to kiss . . .
And say to me what will I find
In Heaven or Hell so sweet as this?

Four hundred year? Pouf! You are wise!
Ten thousand years there are to Eve,
And women still have honest eyes,
And honest eyes will still deceive!

Then raise your glass, my lad, a toast!
Your ringing crystal rim on mine!
Nay, do not tell me that a ghost
Will ever lose the taste for wine!

Hah! It is late! Here, Sire, my hand . . .
There is a sweet cocotte . . you know . . .
Tonight . . this hour . . you'll understand . . .
So, now, God bless you, sir . . I go.

Strange Tale!

From a friend in Paris comes word that the famous dancer, Karsavina, is suffering from a strange mental ailment. How true that is, I don't know, for my correspondent admits frankly that his information comes second-hand and ordinarily I would dismiss it with a single line or ignore it entirely. But what a rare and morbid story it makes! Karsavina is one of the pupils and proteges of the world-famous Russian, Nijinsky, the lad who is reputed to have developed Pavlowa, Korali and Fokina—who himself in his heydey was probably the greatest of all dancers of his particular school. There was a time when his very appearance on a stage in any European city was the signal for hysterical applause. As he grew more successful, Nijinsky became mysterious and morbid. He plunged deeply into the study of occult sciences and soon acquired the power of hypnotism. At first he experimented on his friends. It was great fun—better than the ordinary parlor tricks. Making a dignified prima donna crawl around the room on her hands and knees in the belief that she was a puppy, for instance, or forcing a pompous operatic tenor to meow like an injured alley cat—it was all ticklishly hilarious. But Nijinsky sought greater achievements in this newly discovered occult realm. He decided to hypnotize himself. The rest of the story you know. Came the day when newspapers throughout the world ran headlines that informed you, "Nijinsky Hypnotizes Himself"—"Nijinsky Believes He is a Horse"—Nijinsky Hopelessly Insane."

Since then the foremost physicians and scientists have endeavored, futilely, to bring him out of his self-inflicted trance. Recently his friend, Balieff, of the Chauve Souris, took him to the Opera De Paris, where, manacled to his seat, he watched his protege, the above mentioned Karsavina, dance for him. Music, gayety, applauding crowds on all sides—but this tragic figure, chained to his seat, remained as a stranger, insensible to what was taking place. Karsavina, from the stage, smiled at him and for him. Only his wildly staring eyes greeted her. She wavered a bit and then swooned in the midst of her performance. The curtain was rung down.

That wasn't so long ago. Today Nijinsky, who mesmerized himself into the belief that he was a horse, is in an asylum near Paris, incurably insane. And from Paris, as I've told you, comes this letter from a friend, concerning Karsavina.

Picture Stuff!

You can't be too careful in the movies. Recently, for instance, Robert Montgomery ruined an entire scene, I am told, because he walked on the set, whistling "Buddy, Can You Spare a Dime!"—"I don't get it," he protested to the director. "What's wrong with my coming in, whistling—it fits with my character."

"Yeah, I know," said the director, dryly. "But if we had let the picture go through with that song, we'd have to pay the producers of the show it comes from more royalties than we'll probably make on the picture."

Quip!

Jack Denny would have you believe that when a friend complained to him that he didn't care so much for Jimmy Durante in "The Phantom President" because he sang his songs through his nose, he retorted, "Don't give me that. He couldn't carry the tune that long!"

Nothing But the Truth!

Meyer Davis forwards a copy of a circular received from a leading merchant which naively advises: "My dear sir, if you do not wish to go to excessive expense in the purchase of this year's gift for your fiancee, here is something that will no doubt suit you perfectly—a simply matchless pocketbook of imitation leather, made of the best grad artificial paper substitute!"

Hollywood Primer!

R is for RANT.
Which is what tenants pay
On leases that expire
In October or May.

S is for SCISSOR.
A Roman, by heck.
He had a Brutus
And got it in the neck!

T is for TON.
A musical sound.
Crooners make it seem
Like yelps from a hound.

V is for VICIOUS.
Hopes or desires,
They come true when for your Goods you get some buyers.

W is for WEAL.
Calf's flesh you make
Into a good cutlet
Or else a tough steak.

Jungle Gag!

The explorer had sent one of his men to fetch him a corkscrew. Minutes passed. "John," he yelled. "Where the devil are you? Bring me that corkscrew!" Another servant came running in. "John was on his way back here when he met a lion and the lion tore him to pieces."

O Hum!

CAPITAL POLICE HELD READY FOR HUNGER ARMY

Washington, Nov. 30 (AP)—All police leave was ordered cancelled by the District of Columbia commissioners today effective Sunday in preparation for the handling of groups of demonstrators en route to the Capital.

While there was no statement from either the commissioners or the department of justice that the Federal government had rejected the commissioner's plea that the situation be taken out of their hands, the latter indicated they were preparing to deal with the problem.

Only President Hoover, under the law, can order army or national guard assistance for the police of the District of Columbia.

Hunger Army Boos Cleveland Bologna Meal

Cleveland, Nov. 30 (AP)—More than 400 marchers en route to Washington to seek federal aid refused free meals of bread, bologna and coffee offered them last night by the city of Cleveland and further decided not to sleep on the concrete floor of the public hall basement which had been assigned to them.

With one loud "boo," the marchers picked up their duffle bags and walked out of the hall, leaving behind 175 gallons of coffee, 700 loaves of bread and 175 pounds of bologna.

The decision to abandon the municipal fare was made when local sympathizers offered hot meals and better quarters in halls in other parts of the city.

Another contingent of about 50 marchers who arrived last night in Columbus was fed there by the unemployed council.

Approximately 100 Ohioans planned to join two groups today as the marchers, traveling in trucks and automobiles, again moved toward the nation's capital. The group left this morning for Pittsburgh.

N. E. Marchers in N. Y. "Red" Square

New York, Nov. 30 (INS)—Gathering in Union sq., gathering place of the city's Reds, shortly after dawn, more than 600 hunger marchers from Massachusetts, New Hampshire and this city, began what police expected would be an "orderly" march on Washington.

Most of the marchers had spent the night in the municipal lodging house.

PRINCESS WINS DECREE

The romance of the former Louise Astor Van Alen, Newport, R. I., heiress to millions, was a short one. Married only a year and a half ago to Prince Alexis Mdivani, at a brilliant wedding at Newport, the Princess was awarded a divorce at The Hague, Holland, on grounds of incompatibility.

McKee Got Total of 232,501 Votes

New York, Nov. 30 (AP)—The official canvass of the mayoralty vote made public by the board of elections disclosed that 232,501 persons wrote in the correct name of Joseph V. McKee for mayor in the election November 8.

PRINCE MDIVANI DIVORCED BY U. S. HEIRESS

By SYLVIA LYON

Copyright, 1932, by Universal Service, Inc.

Paris, Nov. 30—The romance of the former Louise Astor Van Alen of Newport, R. I., and New York, and Prince Alexis Mdivani definitely broke up yesterday when a Dutch court, at The Hague, granted her a divorce on grounds of incompatibility.

Prince Mdivani, who is now in the chateau country, did not contest the action, which will be no surprise to friends, for the couple have been separated for some time. Prince Mdivani has been reported most attentive to Barbara Hutton, Woolworth heiress and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Franklyn L. Hutton of New York. Miss Hutton has just returned to the United States.

Miss Van Alen is the daughter of Mrs. James Laurens Van Alen and granddaughter of the late James J. Van Alen, ambassador to Italy during the Cleveland administration. Miss Van Alen is a descendant of John Jacob Astor, founder of the Astor family in America.

Prince Mdivani is a son of Gen. Prince Z. Mdivani, who was a general at the court of the late Czar of Russia.

EX-BALL PLAYER IS SUICIDE

Derry, N. H., Nov. 30—James Arthur Tyler, 44, a well known former baseball player and brother of George ("Lefty") Tyler, star pitcher of the 1914 World Champion Boston Braves, was found dead today in his automobile from a shotgun wound.

The body was found in the car at the edge of the Derry Athletic Association field where the deceased and his three brothers, George, William and Fred, had all made a name for themselves as baseball players.

Tyler had spent yesterday afternoon watching his two sons, Lloyd and Donald, playing football with other Pinkerton academy boys on the same field. Donald was football captain at the academy this season.

Tyler borrowed the gun, saying he was going hunting.

New Cardinals May Be Named by Christmas

Vatican City, Nov. 30 (AP)—Several circumstances regarded as significant have revived discussion of the possibility that Pope Pius may call a consistory for the creation of cardinals before Christmas.

One such circumstance was that of Archbishop Villeneuve of Quebec, who is considered certain to receive the red hat, said soon after an audience with the Pontiff two weeks ago that instead of leaving Italy early next month as he had planned, he would not leave until the end of December.

Another incident was that Archbishop Celso Constantini, apostolic delegate to China, has left there for Rome. It is reported he will be made cardinal prefect of the Organization for Propagation of the Faith.

Mind of Worker Exposed in Letter

By GILBERT SELDES

The letter from which I am about to quote is one of the angriest I have ever received; it is anonymous; it accuses me of ignorance and hypocrisy and other minor crimes; it forces on me opinions I have never held or expressed; it makes unpleasant and, I believe, unfair remarks about certain charitable organizations and casts reflections on the administration in two New England States. I am omitting the parts which strike me as untrue and perhaps libelous, they were written by a man in violent anger and one who, having no special information, merely repeats rumor. But for all that, the letter seems to me perfectly genuine and even important; it tells me, for instance, more about the actual state of feeling of men fighting to keep alive during this depression than any resolutions adopted by the American Federation of Labor; the economic ideas may be weak, but the tone is strong. It is to convey the tone that I leave in some passages which aren't exactly appropriate to the subject.

Gilbert Seldes

Stick to Subject!

After a left-handed compliment about reading this column except when tired the writer says:

"Some men in the newspaper game think they know it all, the other fellow nothing. Hypocrites' the world is full of them, and more so in America. You talk about Roosevelt not being a Mussolini; what has Mussolini got to do with this any more than King George?

"Talk on the subject! Because things from my point of view as a labor man will not be any better until we cut down the hours of labor in conformity to the machine age. You and a lot more newspaper men way write articles about labor conditions, but half of the time you don't know what you are talking about. Is there any difference in the state or government giving you a dole or getting it from charity? . . . (Here follow accusations about the extravagance of charitable organizations.) Young man, you have a lot to learn.

No Deception

"We, the workingmen in this country, know the true conditions and no newspaper is fooling us. In road construction alone, why, the steam shovel has thrown millions of men out of work and they have not been assimilated in other industries. The machine age is not a blessing but a curse to civilization.

"There are more than enough idle rich young women who would be more than willing to do charitable work, and instead of paying out anywhere from 48 to 62 per cent for overhead expense, why, this money could be saved and the drain on city and state funds would not be so great.

"Another thing which makes a lot of trouble in this country—only the newspapers, why did they play up the soldiers' bonus? Every man who is born in this country, when the country is in trouble, should be willing to fight for it, the same as his own home . . . (More unsupported accusations about labor conditions and governors.)

Ignorance

"You newspaper people will not listen to the truth, only to the Chamber of Commerce or some minister who does not know the difference between a picking shaft or a loom or a rocker . . . I and my grandfather and people of my type have fought rotten politics for years and are still fighting them. (Here accusations against certain railroads, based on the writer's knowledge as a railroad man.)

"The trouble with the state and federal government is too many jobs in proportion to the population and the cost is too much—one out of every 11 persons working for the government . . .

"The Socialist party in 1915 went on record for an old age pension, but the newspapers, labor leaders said 'Red radicals,' and it died. If every person had, 15 years back, given one or two per cent of their wages to a contributory pension, the employers the same and the state government a portion, why we could of had a fund like Germany, where there were no poorhouses.

The Dole Is Coming

"Chile has an old age pension that this country could copy. Organized labor has went back 20 years. . . . We should have in this country a national old age pension, and people out of work should have a dole. Stop trying to kid the people because they are getting a dole when they get aid. . . .

"Regardless of what you or anybody else writes, we will force the government to grant a dole because the unemployed is getting it now. Give us, the average workman, the right to have a little common sense and the right to think for ourselves. Don't think because a man has not a college education, why he don't know anything.

"I will sign myself another disgusted reader, also an ex-printer's devil, ex-ranch hand ex-sailor and right now a railroader."

There it is. I don't know what brought it forth; I certainly have not attacked the dole lately. But I am glad to have this letter. I am also glad to think that the writer of it has a job just now. I suspect there are several million of like turn of mind who have none; and they are not likely to hit any more softly than the man who has.

Lame Ducks Can Lean on the Bar

—By ARTHUR "BUGS" BAER—

They can't do much against the combined Republican and Democratic wets who will vote on beer next Monday. Making headaches legal on Tuesday.

Now that it's almost here we are starting to miss the good old days. Jolly times in New York night clubs where the entertainment was a tenor, six Russian dancers and a government raid.

We can almost visualize the Monday scene in Congress. After the vote the Speaker will rise and shine. We can hear his voice as he says: "Beer is in motion and carried. See what the boys in the back room will have."

It will mean repeal, modification, life, liberty and the pursuit of fermentation.

The writer feels he had some small share in the victory. But he is modest and desires no honors or citations. Just bring on the legalized amber flood and he will join the floating population.

Dixon, Ex-Lacrosse Star, Dies in Crash

St. Catharines, Ont., Nov. 30 (AP)—Pinned beneath an overturned auto, Frank H. Dixon, 52, former Olympic lacrosse player, met instant death near St. Catharines last night. Richard Bolton, also of St. Catharines, was injured but not critically. Bolton's car left the road, striking a culvert, when he was blinded by the headlights of another car.

Handkerchief for Safety at Night

Somerset, Nov. 30—The problem of walking along the state highways safely at night has been solved by a resident of this town, who carries a white handkerchief warning motorists of his presence. He reports the practice has proven highly successful. He no longer has close calls from being struck by autos but many motorists stop to ask the meaning of his practice and then offer him rides.

Winter Holds Off a While Longer

Winter, after its brief threat, will remain away for another while, the weather maps indicated today while the temperature stood at 43 degrees at 9 a. m., 15 degrees above the reading for the same hour yesterday.

Tonight, according to the forecast, will be fair and slightly colder, but tomorrow it will warm up again.

Although Greater Boston is assured of fair weather through tomorrow, 9:30 a. m. northeast warnings were ordered continued until sunset today by the weather bureau at Washington, from Eastport, Me., to Marshall Point Light, Me., and changed to small craft warnings south of Block Island, R. I.

MORTON DOWNEY

New York, N. Y.—Morton Downey, star singer of the Columbia Broadcasting System, whose dulcet tenor songs hold millions of radio listeners enthralled, was given an advance showing here today of the new Dodge Six.

"I have an inside tip for America!" he exclaimed. "Wait for the new Dodge. Talk about a car! Wait till you see this one. It's as modern as television. With such looks, such performance, and such features, it will certainly occupy the spotlight next year."

The Dodge organization withholds official announcement of a new car, but it is reliably reported that there will be shortly presented to the public a Dodge Six whose quality and low price set a revolutionary standard for value in the field of motor cars.

Here's Secret of How You Can Spread Yuletide Joy

To Applicants for Christmas Baskets

In order that Christmas baskets go only to deserving and needy families, it is necessary that each application be approved by either your priest, or minister, or school teacher, or mail carrier and nearby storekeeper, or police officer, or social worker, or church or charity group. If you wish to apply for a basket, therefore, get an O. K. from any one of these persons. Do not come to the Evening American office, as it is impossible to personally confer with the many thousands of applicants. Be sure to give the number in the family.

School teachers, priests, ministers, police officers, mail carriers and church and charity groups are urged to send in their lists of deserving applicants as quickly as possible. A vast amount of work is necessary to list and check applicants against duplication, and a charitable deed done quickly is twice blessed. An especial effort to reach needy families not receiving city aid is requested.

Address all names and lists, as well as contributions, to the Christmas Basket Fund, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq.

Are you a Goodfellow?

Do you want to know the secret signs and password to one of the finest organizations of men, women and children in Greater Boston?

Let us tell you about it:

Anyone with a heart can become a member in good standing of the Goodfellows. That means everyone, of course.

There is only one test of membership. Read a few of the letters that come from those in desperate need, who ask only for enough to eat on one day in the year, Christmas Day.

If these appeals awaken your pity, if you feel that impulse to help those in need, who cannot help themselves, you are eligible.

The secret sign? Here it is: When you clasp the hand of the Christmas basket editor, first place in your palm a coin, check or bill. If you can't make a personal call, mail in a money order or check. Send cash by registered mail.

The Christmas Basket Editor, whose address is the Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop sq., Boston, will see that your contribution, every penny of it, goes to some worthy person in the form of a generous basket of food for Christmas.

Why not take your membership test right now? Read the letters of appeal printed today. No comment on them is necessary. Remember, if you wish to help any of these families, the Christmas Basket editor will be glad to give you the names and addresses.

EVERY BIT HELPS

The first contributions arrived late yesterday. Only a few, and for small amounts. But remember that no amount is too small. Don't be ashamed to give silver if you can afford nothing more. The need this year is greater than ever, and it's up to the Goodfellows to see that not a single needy family spends a dreary Christmas this year.

The first contribution was for one dollar, and the latter was simply signed, "From a Veteran Goodfellow." That shows you that it's easy to form a habit of helping others if you just try it once.

Several givers remembered departed dear ones.

A widow, who was last year in dire need, and who received a Christmas basket, finds herself in better circumstances today, and sends in a dollar.

Two newsboys swelled the fund.

Three youngsters who were saving up to buy a present for their mother, were told by that good woman that she would be just as pleased if they gave it to the Christmas Basket fund, and so the editor added 63 cents, mostly pennies, to the fund.

Contributions of a dollar each were received from R. B. M., Medford, "In memory of Sonny"; Somerville and Mrs. J. F. of Milton.

The list of contributors will appear every day. Put your name on the honor roll now.

CASE NO. 1

"I've got four children and another coming. My husband is in jail and I find it very hard to get along. I get a little aid from the city and we hardly have enough to eat. The children are in a bad condition for clothing and shoes.

One of the children has the croup and I had a doctor for her. I think it's because they have no underwear. They really don't know what underwear is. They have a hard time to get by. We really need so much of everything, but we would be very happy to receive anything.

A basket of clothing or anything else would be very welcome. Please send someone down to investigate and they will see the condition of everything, and I am sure they will be glad to help my children when they know the truth.

I had to borrow this paper and envelope from a neighbor in order to let you know about us. Please don't forget us.

There are two girls, ages 11 and 4; and the boys are 9 and 6 years old.

I am 26 years old. We had a poor Thanksgiving and I hope you will lighten our hearts for Christmas. I will be waiting to hear or see you before Christmas.

This mother lives in East Cambridge. Anyone wishing to investigate this case may call the Christmas Fund Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 1.

CASE NO. 2

I am a patient at the Boston Sanatorium. I've been away from home for three years and in that time I lost my brother, Jan. 28, 1931, with tuberculosis; my father, June 14, 1931, with tuberculosis, and here I am with tuberculosis.

I know that my mother needs some help and I am going to ask you if you can do anything for my mother.

My mother is a cripple for the past 18 years and she can't do anything for herself. I can't do anything to help her here.

Please try and help my mother. I hope you will try.

I know she owes money to everybody, but she won't tell me because I worry.

Sometimes I just think and I get so discouraged that I feel like shooting myself.

This girl lives in South Boston. Anyone wishing to investigate this case may call the Christmas Fund Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 2.

My husband came home from the hospital last week after being operated on. The Welfare is giving me $9 a week. Six dollars is cash and the rest is an order for groceries. Of the six, two and a quarter goes for rent and about $3 goes for wood and coal and I have got to buy shoes for my three children.

So you can see, we really have nothing left for food. My children haven't had a glass of milk in four weeks and they are not well. If you could spare a basket for my children's sake, I would appreciate it immensely. Hoping you won't disappoint me.

This woman lives in Somerville. Anyone wishing to investigate this case may call the Christmas Fund Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 3.

CASE NO. 4

When my father used to work, he used to buy the Boston Evening American every night. Right now he is out of work for a long time and he can't afford to buy papers until he lands another job.

Dear Goodfellow, we are seven in the family with my mother and my father. My mother has been sick for a long time now and the doctor comes every day now. All my sisters have no clothes to wear so I will ask if you can send me some clothes instead of toys.

Two weeks ago the furniture-man came over and took some of the furniture that my father bought for us some time ago.

That is all I can say with a very bad Thanksgiving Day.

This little girl lives in East Cambridge. Anyone wishing to investigate this case may call the Christmas Fund Editor, Liberty 4000, and ask for Case No. 4.

U. S. BUILDS UP CASE AGAINST MANN, AIDS

New York, Nov. 30 (AP)—The Government laid the groundwork of its lottery prosecution against Conrad H. Mann, Kansas City business leader; Frank E. Hering, Bernard C. McGuire and Raymond Walsh today, presenting to the jury books of alleged lottery tickets and literature sent to all members of the Fraternal Order of Eagles.

The tickets produced by the Government offered $75,000 in prizes and said "money donated to charity is money well spent." The tickets were ostensibly for frolics and dances given by local Eagle aeries.

The literature offered the Eagle members for selling the tickets "Opportunity of gaining a magnificant reward for yourself and of alleviating suffering and disaster among our members."

The evidence was introduced through the testimony of Eugene J. Baisiger of Kansas City, who was described as auditor for the Eagles' bazar department.

Baisiger also identified contracts between Mann and the Eagles, between Mann and Hering, and between Mann and McGuire. Mann, he testified, is managing director of the Eagles bazaar department, getting 40 per cent of net profits. The contract between Mann and McGuire provided that each should receive 50 per cent of profits from the activities which the government contended was a lottery.

Eagle members were offered an $18 silver set, 10 free tickets and a certificate calling them "a defender of the true principles" for selling each book of 50 tickets.

GIBSON GIRL BARES ROMANCE

Homewood before the seduction.

Homewood, it appeared from their story, acted in many capacities. He taught her how to drive and to skate. He sold her a car. He sold and delivered feed for her horse. At Christmas he sent her a card speaking of "Radiant paths through the New Year." And he sent a box of carrots to Starlight, her horse. Everyone smiled as she spoke of it—except Charlotte.

Early in 1932 Miss Gibson solemnly said Homewood asured her he was "not engaged to anyone." But it was not until March, just before she yielded to intimacies with Homewood; that he said definitely his engagement was broken.

Dist. Atty. Stebbins had told the jury, before the girl took the stand, that he would prove it was Miss Bishop who broke the engagement, although Homewood had made it appear he had severed relations because he was in love with Charlotte Gibson.

Stebbins told a tempestuous tale of the girl's credulity when she submitted to the intimacy because she was told it was "a part of their troth." He said Miss Gibson later refused to try to avoid motherhood, at Homewood's insistence, threatening suicide instead.

Homewood, the district attorney declared, took her riding after that and once, when she was thrown, expressed his satisfaction. But by June he was quieting her with new promises of marriage, Stebbins said.

When the girl's father learned of the betrayal, the attorney said, he asked Homewood to marry her and the riding master reluctantly agreed. But he kept putting it off, until finally the irate father took the matter to the district attorney.

HEALTHIEST IN THE LAND

DOROTHY EILER ROSS ALLEN

Look at the teeth these smiles show. Would you think that the only defects in these two youngsters are in those teeth? It's true. They are Dorothy Eiler, 16, of Hill City, Aitkin County, Minn., and Ross Allen, 20, of Salem, Harrison County, W. Va. Respectively, they are 98.6 and 99.4 per cent perfect, being the annual 4-H Club national health champions, chosen, as usual, at the international live stock show in Chicago. Dorothy is a 125-pound brunette, 5 feet 4 inches tall. Ross weighs 184½ pounds, and stands 5 feet 9.6 inches tall. Both like outdoor sports, dancing and dates and want to enter the medical profession. (International News Photos.)

Betty Alden

PRISCILLA SALTONSTALL, Polly Cunningham, Charlotte Young, Edith Wolcott, Lydia Fuller, Edith Bass, Dorothy Forbes and others have been invited to appear as mannikins in the Hickson Fashion Parade, which will be a feature of the Farmer's Frolic for the benefit of the Christopher Shop on Wednesday evening, Dec. 7, at the Hotel Somerset . . .

"Dimitri" will dress their coiffure in French fashion to accompany their costumes . . . as they are among the most beautiful of the debutantes of this and past seasons the effect should be striking and different.

CHARLOTTE YOUNG

The fashion show will take place preceding the stand-up supper, which will be served about midnight . . . you know everything is going to be delightfully informal and hilarious and everyone is expected to enter into the spirit of the dance and not just be an onlooker . . . let us depress depression at the Farmer's Frolic.

Dinner Parties Planned

KATHERINE BALCH, Sarah Shurcliff and Jean Lawson are in charge of transforming the ballroom into country-side effect with sheaves of golden corn, scarecrows, moons and things to induce the farmers and farmerettes to have a pleasant evening "comin' thro' the rye" . . .

Many dinner parties will be given preceding the dance . . . Mrs. John R. Chapin will give the ushers' dinner . . . Mrs. James J. Phelan will have a dinner for her debutante daughter, Priscilla, Mrs. J. Franklin McElwain will honor her daughter, Frances, with a large party, and Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller is planning to entertain for Lydia.

guests will join the merry throng of "hicks" making a night of it.

The scenic background which will be very Harper's Bazaar-ish, we hear, will be painted by society's popular artist, Dwight Sheppler . . .

Another distinctly well patronized feature will be the fortune teller, Miss Godell, who in this and past seasons has told many a little debbie her FATE . . .

So come, one and all, to the country dance at the Somerset in "any old thing" to help the unfortunate veterans who will be benefited by the sale of tickets . . .

Debut at New Exclusive Club

KATHERINE WINTHROP and Nancy Shaw went over to New York to Jane Fowler's debutante party at the new and exclusive "River Club" . . . Jane is niece of Mrs. Roger Cutler and of Mrs. George S. West . . . Mrs. Fowler was a Cryder, sister of Edith Cryder Cutler. Mr. Arthur Fowler is brother of Mrs. West, who was Dorothy Fowler. Mrs. Cutler had planned to attend her niece's debut, but Freddy Ames' airplane accident prevented . . .

The "River Club" was opened this fall down by the East river . . . smartest of the smart! The Fowler guests took in the first of the Knickerbocker Club dances at the Ritz-Carlton the same evening . . .

Another popular rendezvous for Bostonians when they are Manhattaning is the Club Europa . . . over the preceding week-end was glimpsed there Leslie Blake and a dashing swain, Mr. and Mrs. "Dick" Woods (Kitty Almy), Paul Bates, with Eleanor Flick, a stunning New York belle, Allen Whitney, Charlotte Fairchild, more beautiful than ever; the "Bob" Pinkertons and Chester Dane . . .

Delightful, Informal Tea Party

WHAT DO YOU WISH Santa Claus to bring you for Christmas, we asked everybody we met at the Charlotte Cushman Club yesterday at their delightful and informal tea-party . . .

Mrs. Franklin Hobbs

Mrs. Malcolm Bradley French, president, didn't hesitate for a second as she promptly replied: "Someone to lift the second mortgage off the Cushman Club" . . . and wasn't that an unselfish wish?

"To have my two children with me for Christmas," was the reply of John Barker, baritone song-bird in "Face the Music," as he smiled into the eyes of his attractive wife . . . and she agreed.

Mrs. Franklin Hobbs refused to be NOBLE . . . "I have two swans," says she, "and I hope nature or Santa Claus will do the rest." Let us hope we heard correctly . . . SWANS, not swains!

Mrs. Alvan T. Fuller murmured the wish that her popular deb daughter, Lydia, might find time to stay at home the night before Christmas . . . at least long enough to hang up her stocking.

This event will be held once a month, Thursday being the day of the week selected for this purpose, and the dates are given as Dec. 15, Jan. 19, Feb. 16, March 16 and April 20.

Latest Notes of the Fashionables

By Dorothy Whipple Fry

MISS ELLEN BOTTOMLEY of Beacon st., who made her debut this season, is tall and slender. She is a good dancer and we might add she has plenty of partners.

Another lovely young debutante who looks well in evening dress is Miss Shirley Swain, of Chestnut Hill. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Loring Swain. And in her exquisite cloth of silver gown, fluffy golden hair and "Nell Brinkley" face with huge blue eyes fringed with dark lashes, she seemed to be having a "Super Time" the other night at the Country Club, at the ball given by Mr. and Mrs. James Phelan in honor of their golden haired daughter, Miss Priscilla Phelan.

* * *

THE YOUNG LADY who knows how to deport herself is Miss Mary Esther Cooper of Newton. She looks enchanting with her soft brown hair and little ringlets at the back of her very lovely neck and her hazel eyes simply atwinkle with delight. She wore a white satin gown, low in the back with beaded shoulder straps. It was a perfect fit. She has a slender and graceful little figure and looks exceedingly well in evening dress.

Miss Jane Smith looked chic in her black lace evening gown with huge butterfly sleeves and a low cut back. She has a unique method of wearing her spray of gardenias at the back of her gown just at the waistline. She is slender and graceful but quite tall and golden haired. She wears no makeup and is most attractive without it.

Books---And a Number of Things

—By CHARLES HANSON TOWNE—

Seeing a famous motion-picture star "in person" at a screen performance the other evening on Broadway, I found myself thinking back through the years.

The "personal appearance" is not a new idea. There has always been a time when the public demanded a close-up of its theatrical idols. Anyone will turn in the streets, or in a hotel corridor, if it is whispered that a great star is passing by. Mrs. Fiske used to wear a heavy veil to protect her from the gaze of the multitude; but most actresses like to be identified and stared at.

I heard of a singer who liked to be asked for his autograph when he attended first nights. "After all, they're my public—these girls and boys who seek me out—and it is little enough for me to sign my name to their books. I am just that human that I enjoy being recognized off the operatic stage."

He must have written his signature no less than five hundred times in such circumstances; which of course, will reduce the value of his autograph in the future when it is appraised. The signature difficult to obtain, even from a more obscure personage, will be the one worth more to collectors. "But I won't be here to know that," he laughingly says.

Air of Mystery

We used to have stock companies in the legitimate theater. There was Daly's long ago; and the great manager, so the legend runs, refused to allow his stars to walk on Broadway or Fifth avenue and become the common property of the crowd. He contended that if mystery was maintained, there would be all the more curiosity about Ada Rehan and John Drew and the others who appeared on his stage. They were never seen dining at Delmonico's or Sherry's. Receptions were never allowed to be given them. There was secrecy in their every movement, and this whetted the public's desire to see them in the only place it could—on the stage at Daly's.

Later there was a stock company at the now vanished Murray Hill Theater. Dorothy Donnelly, in her early 'teens, was a member of it; but the whole troupe worked so hard, rehearsing every morning, playing daily matinees as well as the regular evening performances, that they had, poor dears, little time for social life. And so they, too, remained somewhat of a mystery in a much smaller New York. They earned their meager salaries, God knows; and the rumor was that the leading lady worked so hard that she suffered a nervous breakdown and died.

It is small wonder. Twelve performances a week, and the constant study of new roles was enough to wreck the health of even the most robust actor.

Then, up in Harlem, at the Opera House on 125th st., came another stock company, headed by Paul McAllister. He was a personable young man, and very popular. He worked just as hard as those in the Murray Hill company, and we used to marvel at his versatility. How could anyone have so much stored-up energy and keep in such perfect trim? He became a matinee idol, almost as much sought after as the more famous stars of his time, James K. Hackett and William Faversham. His following of the gentler sex was not content to view him only from afar. They stood in patient battalions outside the stage-door, longing to touch the hem of his garment as he passed out into the dreary world of reality. Londoners were never more loyal to their individual idols.

Finally it was arranged that after certain matinees, widely advertised, Mr. McAllister and the entire company would give a tea and reception on the stage, so that patrons (I refuse to employ the odious modern phrase, "cash customers!") could shake the hands of those they so greatly admired.

These receptions were an enormous success, and had to be continued indefinitely. But they must have sapped the strength of the worn-out actors, and often they must have wished that they could go home for a much-needed rest between performances, instead of standing like a President, receiving the homage, sweet as it was, of an endless line of citizens.

* * *

There is only one stock company in New York now—that of the Civic Repertory Theater, down in the historic old 14th St. Theater, away from the rush and roar of Broadway.

When they play "Peter Pan" down there, Eva Le Gallienne sends out her staff to bring in little children who seldom get into a theater, and gives them a certain number of reserved free seats; and they shout with alarm at Capt. Hook, and rejoice when Peter flies up to the balcony.

The youthful members of this company have lots of fun mixed in with their work. To go to a rehearsal there is a rich experience, with the tireless Miss Le Gallienne directing gently but firmly, and everyone striving for the general good of the organization.

They would rather receive necessarily smaller salaries down there than take all the risks of a Broadway career, with its uncertainties and false alarms. They actually enjoy their laborious days. They are like a big, happy family; and no one, after six years of hard work, ever deserved a year's holiday more than the enterprising and gifted Eva Le Gallienne, who has returned this season with four more plays in her repertory.

But I doubt if even she, with all her amazing energy, could stand the added strain of receptions on the stage.

'A MAN MUST FIGHT'

Tunney's Best Blow Landed on Madden

SYNOPSIS

Tunney's K. O. victory over Tom Gibbons on June 5, 1925, puts him in line as Jack Dempsey's challenger and the late Tex Rickard opens negotiations for that match while partisans of Harry Wills, colored contender, start bitter "knocking" campaign against Gene. The latter agrees to fight Wills but Harry fails to show up to sign articles, confident that the New York boxing officials would uphold his prior claim to the Dempsey match. Affairs are now nearing a climax in Tunney's career which he has described in previous chapters from his boyhood days in Greenwich Village, through the A. E. F., and up to the portals of the world's boxing championship. He and Gibson are now in a contest of wits with Wills (and the "split-commission" element) for that big title shot.

By GENE TUNNEY

Having Wills refuse to meet me was not keeping my hand in the game. Knowing how necessary this was, Gibson and I accepted a match to box Bartley Madden in Minneapolis in the latter part of September, 1925.

As the months went on I kept getting better. I knew there was but one way to continue this improvement and that was by fighting as often as possible. Madden, who had not seen me in a couple of years, had not allowed for the possibility of improvement.

He flew at me in the first round just as he used to at the City A. C., back in 1919, when I was a youngster just discharged from service. Madden, a year earlier, had somewhat deflated the Wills balloon of greatness by holding him off for 15 rounds.

Bartley, though small and not much of a hitter, was very tough and had as game a fighting heart as was ever put in a man. Strict training always bored him. He went into many fights completely untrained, but on getting in fought until he fell.

The left hook that knocked Madden out in the third round, after he had got up from a count of nine, was the best that I have ever delivered. Lou Fink, my trainer who was with me in all important matches, contends that I never hit as good a blow before or since.

Again a Tunney victory jeopardized the standing of the "black menace"—Wills. Something surely had to be done. Madden had discharged his manager a couple of months before his fight with me. This fellow became associated with Paddy Mullins, Wills' manager. On the day the Madden-Tunney fight was to take place in Minneapolis this disgruntled ex-manager went to a certain sports writer and said:

"Tunney will score a knockout over Madden tonight. I know it is fixed."

MANAGERS' OWN RACKET

The sports writer worked on a new publication edited by a man whose ethics were no credit to his profession, and whose only thought was to increase circulation. This editor, accordingly, was made the dupe of the chiselers who had a piece of Wills. I do not believe Paddy Mullins was a party to this; but others were who were associated with him in an attempt to ingratiate themselves by advancing Wills at the cost of Madden's and my reputation.

One of these was the dismissed manager of Madden, who, chagrined because Madden had been matched for an important fight in which he was not to get his managerial cut, gave vent to the malice of his nature. He forgot the previous fights in which Madden was battered around by large and more skillful opponents; fights in which he shared in everything but the beatings. This is the brand of ingratitude that is so peculiarly a part of a good many managers.

Occasionally a manager will direct the training of a fighter, but this is rare. Licensed trainers are usually hired for this purpose. Though managers will fight and chisel each other, and become bitterly acrimonious toward one another, they meet on one common ground; to oppose any fighter without a manager. A boxer who could be successful without a manager would be a bad example to the other boxers.

According to the sensational policy of the publication mentioned above, a long telegram was sent to the promoter, Jack Reddy, to come East at the publication's expense to give testimony as to the honesty of the Tunney-Madden fight. Reddy provided himself with affidavits from George Barton, the referee, sports writer of the Minneapolis Tribune and leading boxing authority in the Middle West; the chairman of the Minnesota State Boxing Commission and several newspaper men who saw and reported the fight for their papers.

When Reddy gave his testimony and presented the affidavits to the self-appointed committee of the publication, in fury these circulation hounds accused him, the referee, the Boxing Commission and all the newspaper men of being party to the alleged fraud. The story was too preposterous for other newspapers to touch.

However, a lawyer to whom I had taken the copies of this publication advised me that there was no outright slander. The laws had been carefully circumvented.

JIM CORBETT'S ADVICE

Wills was associated with a powerful and influential ring of cheap politicians and split-commission men who went the full limit for him — and incidentally for themselves. In my next match, on November 13, against Johnny Risko, in Cleveland, a story left Cleveland that I had been knocked down in the first round. In truth Risko did not land a solid blow during the 12 rounds.

One of the most pleasant experiences of my career came to me that night. I met James J. Corbett and talked with him after the fight. Jim was playing in a local theater and came down to the auditorium to see the match with Risko. He had never seen me box before. I felt because of my sore hands he did not see me at my best. At this suggestion, to my surprise Jim said:

"If you'd had Dempsey in there tonight you would have knocked him out."

I said I did not think so and did not understand his reasoning.

He explained:

"When you hit this fellow Risko and had him all but out, which occured in every round, he'd wrap his arms about his face and cover up, leaving you no opening in which to place a finishing punch. Now if you hit Dempsey a blow like any of those and hurt him, he will not cover up. He doesn't know how. In rushing in he'd leave a nopening so that you could get in the finishing shot. When you fight Dempsey fight him exactly as you fought Risko tonight and you'll surely win."

I was to learn that Jim was wrong in one regard. Dempsey did know how to cover up!

"THREE WOMEN" A New Novel of Human Lives

By Faith Baldwin

Little Gossip of the Hurried Wedding

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

Mrs. Louisa Lennox Sheldon . . . first of the THREE WOMEN, a wealthy New York widow . . idolizes her son, Lennox, just graduated from Columbia. She planned two years in advance to marry him to some healthy, well-bred, not clever, and docile girl after she found mute evidence on his dress clothes that he had been at a studio party which included what she considered "improper female companions." She arranged for Elizabeth Howland, daughter of her sister-in-law, to come to New York city and become Mrs. Sheldon's companion. At first Lennox did not take to Elizabeth, but, after many months, he began to realize that the quiet, studious girl was of his own poetry-loving type and returning from a European tour, he suddenly tells her he loves her. The engagement is announced. Elizabeth goes to see her mother in Boston. Lennox follows and a certain happening causes the date of the wedding to be set for the immediate future.

Belowstairs, two huddled together upon a couch. The color had come back to Elizabeth's face. She could smile a little and once she startled herself by laughing at something Lennox said. The drama had dwindled to readjustment. The burden had been taken from their young shoulders. They could even forgive—or ignore—the things Louisa had put into words, the other, more bitter things she had not uttered. She was old, she couldn't understand, they were pariah in the sight of her middle-age. But they loved one another—and everything would come right.

They dined, passably well, with Henrietta in the gloomy dining room. Henrietta was flutteringly exhilarated at the thought of the coming ceremonies. Louisa stayed in her room, writing, telephoning, sending back her tray untouched. Late that night, long after she heard them come upstairs, she rose from her desk, stiffly, like an old woman. She had heard Lennox hesitate at her door. How she had listened then, waiting for his knock, his touch on the knob, but he had passed on to his own. She had heard far down the corridor another door close, Elizabeth's.

TOOK OFF HER CLOTHES

Now she rose and took off her clothes, putting them neatly to rights in a clothes press or over a chair, turning her stockings wrong side out as she always did, fitting wooden trees to her bots. She drew the cool white linen of her nightgown over her head, brushed and braided her abundant hair, washed, opened her windows. Then disregarding the cool rush of air blowing the curtains, she knelt beside her bed.

After a long time she rose again. She had not prayed.

She lay down on the big bed and drew the blankets about her. It was not cold, for March, but she shivered continuously. She shut her eyes and saw dreadful unspeakable things. She could not see beauty for she had never seen it; she was unfamiliar with its veiled and altering face.

She wept, painfully. She thought she wept for the dishonor of her son. Hate dried her tears, and she thought it hatred of his sin. Hate licked at her heart, it was a vehement flame.

After a time she crept from her bed and went to the door which communicated with Lennox's room. She crouched down beside it and pressed her face to the polished panels. Was he in that room, sleeping, or walking? Or was the room empty of him? Had he felt it, stealing like a thief down the quiet, carpeted hall?

FIND A PROTEST

It seemed to her that against such an outrage the old house must find a voice of protest, must cry out.

Louisa drowsed there, half sitting and half kneeling, listening to his audible breathing. Once he stirred and spoke a name. She knew the murmur for a name, she knew whose name. She pressed closer to the panel, dreading an answer. None came.

She stayed as she was, her braids of graying hair falling over the relaxed bosom. Her tall angularity was as if shrouded in the stiff whiteness of her decent nightgown, her bare feet protruded, blue with cold, helpless and ugly.

Crucified there, against the barrier which separated them, not daring to go in to him with this live flame eating at her heart, she crouched at his door, painfully doggedly, until daylight.

The advanced date of the Sheldon-Howland wedding caused very little comment. People revised their engagement books and allotted an hour to the purchasing of gifts. One or two women who knew Louisa Sheldon fairly well—none could call herself an intimate—said, not caring, "Going abroad? How like Louisa!" Which, interpreted, implied that Mrs. Sheldon's custom of suitng her own convenence was recognized.

PREPARATIONS WENT ON

In the house on Washington Square the preparations went on, quietly. Louisa's wire to Ella had been of so urgent a nature that Ella arrived, tearful and flurried, upon the first possible day and was asked to share her daughter's room.

"You won't mind? I thought you might like it. The girls will have the green guest room, next door, and the Lennox connection will occupy the others."

Normally, Elizabeth would have been glad of her mother's close companionship through the remaining days and nights. But not now. For Ella's tears and transports, her soft reproaches concerning the contemplated "elopement," her stammered Victorian, decently vague warnings and explanations took on a shape of refined torment to the girl. She marveled unceasingly and gratefully, that her mother was so insensitive to the atmosphere of the house, to Louisa's attitude toward herself, Elizabeth. Yet there was nothing tangible, nothing you could put your finger on and, to the uninitiated, the mask, as always, sufficed.

SISTERS ARRIVED

The sisters arrived, having procured substitutes for their school positions. The Lennox connection, women stiff in black satin, liberal of jet and bugles, men heavily frock-coated after an older fashion, came rustling and tramping into the house, entirely self-possessed, full of long, congratulatory speeches, bearing expensive gifts. The place began to hum with talk, to clatter with tea cups, and Henrietta was red rimmed about the eyes, wan from sewing, from the last fittings, despite the two assistants who had been called in.

Much of Elizabeth's trousseau had come from the shops, an inevitable departure from old custom. The wedding gown was secured already made, a Worth importation, sent over as a model. The sewing room might have sat for its portrait, every chair heaped with fine linens and laces; with ribbons uncurling colored lengths of satin; with feathers and straw and buckles, slippers and shoes and stockings.

"You don't seem a bit excited, Betty. If I were in your place I'd be out of my mind," Alice remarked, viewing the pretty chaos.

Louisa made her own careful plans, arranged her sailing for a few days after the wedding, communicated with the acquaintance who was departing at the same time.

AFTER THE CEREMONY

Directly after the ceremony Lennox was to take Elizabeth to Pinehurst; the rooms had been engaged.

Mrs. Howland said, damply, to her hostess, "We can't thank you enough, Louisa. All you are doing for my little girl! How happy she will be! Lennox is the dearest boy and Betty will be a good wife. I have brought her up with that in mind—a woman's highest duty. She is domestic, devoted, simple in her tastes. But you have had her with you for two years now, so you know."

"Yes, I know," Louisa answered, with no effort at irony. Indeed she spoke absently, amiably enough while her mind stood aghast at how little she had known.

Don't Coddle a COLD!

The moment a cold shows, knock it off! Don't let it linger—and don't attempt to palliate it! Many remedies merely pamper a cold, to the victim's regret. The only way to deal with a cold is to kill it—as quickly as you can!

If treated promptly—when the sneezing or headache begins — a cold can usually be knocked in 12 hours. But you must get at the root of the trouble, a germ infection within the system. This calls, first of all, for a COLD remedy, not a cure-all. A preparation that's good for all kinds of ills and ailments can't be equally effective for a cold. Many popular remedies only make relief more difficult because they are constipating and also make the system acid.

A Cold is An Internal Infection

Take a cold remedy and an INTERNAL one. A cold is an internal infection and, as such, requires internal treatment. Don't be fooled by merely local or external applications. They can't reach the seat of the trouble and they can't stop the spreading of the infection within the system. Your doctor will tell you that.

Your doctor will also tell you that there is nothing better you can take for a cold than Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine. Most physicians will frankly admit they couldn't write a better prescription for a cold if they wanted to. For Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine does the several things necessary to rout a cold, in the way that is necessary.

First, it gently, but thoroughly, opens the bowels—the first requirement in overcoming a cold. Second, it kills the cold germs in the system, drives out the poisonous infection and reduces the fever. Third, it relieves the headache and that grippy feeling. Fourth, it tones the entire system and fortifies against further attack.

That is the treatment you want for a cold and, for your own safety, be satisfied with nothing less!

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine may be taken with utter safety by young and old. It contains no narcotics and produces no bad after-effects. It does not upset the stomach, nauseate or make the head ring or swim. In virtually every country in the world it is the accepted cold remedy.

The "Stitch in Time"

In dainty tablet form, Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is convenient and pleasant to take, as well as effective. It comes in handy pocket size boxes, cellophane-wrapped, and is sold by every drug store in America. When you feel a cold coming on, take Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine at once. There is no better remedy for a cold and no reliable dealer will try to tell you there is.

—Edited by MARGARET MATSON—

THE PARKA is practically an undiscovered winter sports treasure. Only the serious-minded sports folk seem to know it. It's a garment you wear much as you would a leather jacket. It keeps out the cold; it's windproof and waterproof. And when you are struggling up a trail and are too warm to wear it, you roll it around your waist or tuck it in your knapsack without adding any weight. The hood snaps on so that in severe cold or in a storm you can protect your face and throat. The idea has been drawn from the Esquimaux and adapted to our milder climate. Sir Wilfred and Lady Grenfell brought the one sketched from their mission in Labrador. The sports shops about town have some that are untrimmed and furless. When the snow arrives, one will doubtless see numbers of them on the hills and through the mountains.

Cotton for the First Anniversary

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I have been informed that paper is correct for the first wedding anniversary, and upon consulting two or three books I found that cotton was listed for the first anniversary. As different people have various answers for this question, I will appreciate your opinion. L.

Either is correct. There always is this difference of opinion about the symbols for the first and the second anniversaries. Some authorities give cotton as the symbol for the first anniversary, and some paper. Some time ago I made a very careful research of this and found many more lists giving cotton for the first anniversary. And paper for the second anniversary.

Note of Greeting

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

My brother, who has married recently in California, has asked me to write his wife. Should I write to her first, or should she write to me first? T.

Your brother is right in asking you to write a note of greeting and friendliness to his wife. It is the family of the groom who welcome into the family the fiancee or wife. As a matter of fact, the members of the young man's family should write to his fiancee at once after he has told them of his engagement. If this wasn't possible, in your case, then you should write at once to his wife.

Best Remedy for Cough Is Easily Mixed at Home

Saves $2. So Easy! No Cooking!

You'll never know how quickly a stubborn cough can be conquered, until you try this famous recipe. It is used in more homes than any other cough remedy, because it gives more prompt, positive relief. It's no trouble at all to mix and costs but a trifle.

Into a pint bottle, pour 2½ ounces of Pinex; then add granulated sugar syrup to make a full pint. Syrup is easily made with 2 cups of sugar and one cup of water, stirred a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed. This saves two-thirds of the money usually spent for cough medicine, and gives you a purer, better remedy. It never spoils, and tastes fine.

Instantly you feel its penetrating effect. It loosens the germ-laden phlegm, clears the air passages, and soothes and heals the inflamed membranes. This three-fold action explains why it brings such quick relief in severe coughs.

Woman's Club Mainstay of Home

By MARGUERITE MOOERS MARSHALL

THE WOMAN'S CLUB once attacked as a menace to the home, is actually its mainstay.

Women told, at a recent convention, with justifiable pride, of the work their clubs are doing. Invariably, it was simple, useful, constructive work, a program designed to make better homes, healthier children, a finer community spirit. The creed of the clubwoman is that of intelligent helpfulness. The activities of the clubwoman are an extension into her community of the old neighborly spirit which always has animated good American wives and mothers.

"Women's clubs are often criticized for getting away from the home, and women are told they can accomplish more there than in club work. My answer to that is—clubs are going straight back to the home—they are assuming the responsibility of making the home more intelligent, more cultured, more fit to cope with life in ever-changing America."

Once it was charged against the clubwoman, by her critics, that she was likely to neglect her children by attending the club meetings. She has confuted these critics by proving herself not only a good mother to the youngsters in her own household, but a mother who cannot bear the thought of any children's suffering—a mother who wants all boys and girls to be as healthy and happy as her own brood.

Women do use their clubs as cultural and social agencies—why not? But, primarily, the woman's club is a promoter of the welfare of the whole community in which it exists—just as the wife and mother herself primarily labors not for her own good but for that of her whole family.

Marry Go Round

Modern Wives and Ex-Wives

Household Hints

BREAK BREAD in small pieces and butter only a bit, or two at a time, holding it down over the bread and butter plate.

WHEN MAKING fruit cake, pour 1-3 the batter in the pan and then add part of the fruit, add more batter and the rest of the fruit. This will aid in preventing the fruit from going to the bottom of the pan.

Black Costumes Are Always Popular

CABLE FROM THE PARIS BUREAU

PARIS, Nov. 30—One of the advantages of black clothes lies in the fact that they may be made as simply or as elaborately as possible without giving any appearance of being extreme or fanciful. It is a characteristic French dressmakers learned decades ago; more often than not, their tryouts of new fashions are made in black first, before they are done in color. Several houses make duplicates in black of their colored dresses and show the two dresses at once.

In today's sketches are two costumes of quite opposite natures, both done in black. One is a tailored street dress, done more elaborately than usual; the other is a tailored coat, executed in the simplest possible manner. In spite of this difference, these two costumes are very much at home side by side, and on the same occasions, mainly because they are in the classic black that Paris loves.

The dress, by Chanel, is in jersey, made elaborate not only by the unusual treatment of the shoulder and sleeve seams, but by the brilliant-set buttons and the white crepe de Chine guimpe. Done in the effect of a jacket and skirt, the dress is really one piece, and buttons at the center front. The belt, in black, is rigid composition, with brilliant buttons, follows the coloring of a diamond-and-jet piece of jewelry.

Martha Lee's Chat

Junket for the Whole Family

By MARTHA LEE

From Martha Lee's Wednesday Morning Broadcast Over Station WAAB

I THINK we are all agreed that milk is the best food we have. Herbert Hoover tells us:

"Give your children milk; a quart a day for every child if possible; a pint without fail. Plenty of milk will help you give all your children, both big and little, the chance for health they ought to have."

There cannot be a better way of using milk for health, economy, and delicious eating, than by making junket desserts.

To eat milk in this way is better than to drink milk; it is taken more slowly, and is more nourishing.

For besides giving to milk a delicate, jelly-like consistency junket is in itself the very substance which nature provides for the perfect digestion of milk.

The desserts that can be made "in a jiffy" with milk and junket powder are delicious and afford much variety. Frozen junket desserts in cream, sherbets, etc., are wonderfully nutritious, and easy to make. They are perfections of desserts, and that means they're all delightfully dainty—and highly nutritious

Raspberry Junket Delight

1 pkg. raspberry junket
1 pt. milk
½ cup shredded pineapple
¼ lb. marshmallows
2 tbsps. chopped crystallized ginger

Cut marshmallows in four pieces with scissors. Arrange a few pieces in sherbet glasses and sprinkle a little ginger over them. Warm the milk to blood heat (not hot) and stir the junket powder into it. Stir for one minute and pour into the sherbet glasses and let set until firm. Then put away in the ice box to chill. Mix pineapple and ginger with the rest of the marshmallows and set in the ice box for an hour or two. At serving time pile this mixture on top of the junket. Garnish with maraschino cherries.

Then junket is such a friend in an emergency—when husband brings home the unexpected guest or when the dear in-laws drop in unheralded and unsung. You can make such tempting dishes in a jiffy if there is always a package of junket on hand. Here are some delicious combinations:

Treat the Boy Kindly, Says Miss Fairfax

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am 19 years of age and have been going with a fine young man for a year. He is 24. Since I have known him he has had a struggle about money matters. All the time I have gone with him he has never given me a gift. Please understand, I am not a "gold-digger," but feel he should think of me now and then. I realize he can't afford anything expensive, but think something like flowers, a book or a compact would be appreciated. I love this man, Miss Fairfax, but I feel that he should not be so thoughtless. Am I right?

WORRIED.

Dear Worried: If the boy is poor, do be reasonable and don't expect presents. It's true that he might give you a quarter bunch of flowers bought from a man with a basket, but he probably thinks you're too good for such a simple offering. In your place I'd be merciful to that young man who is having trouble with making both ends meet, particularly as you say you love him.

Presents for the Boy Friend

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

My boy friend's birthday is coming, and Christmas soon will be here, and I am having trouble deciding what to buy for him for both occasions. Last year for his birthday I gave him a photograph and scarf, and for Christmas a bill fold and key ring case. He does not smoke, so it makes it somewhat harder to decide on something suitable.

HEO.

Dear Heo: So many girls have written me asking what they shall give their boy friends for Christmas, that I am going to give some general suggestions. In these days of motoring, a thermos kit is very good, with a sandwich case and coffee or cold water bottle; leather portfolio for writing; a brief case; a reading lamp—all books are always acceptable. Be sure to get something he likes.

Diabetes Can Be Put Under Control

By DR. R. S. COPELAND

I RECEIVE many, many inquiries from persons who suffer from diabetes. They ask for information about diet.

Dr. Copeland

It is impossible to recommend one general diet for this disease. Each patient must have a special diet fitted for his particular case. What foods can be given must be determined after the amount of sugar present in the blood and urine has been estimated.

I am frequently asked, too, as to whether diabetes can be cured. Diabetes is not curable, but it can be controlled. With the discovery of insulin and the rapid advances made in the management of this disease, diabetes can be kept in check. Insulin does not cure diabetes, but, as I have suggested, it controls the disease, so that the afflicted person is assured his full span of years.

Even though there is no medicine known to mankind that will cure diabetes, the disease must not be considered as hopeless. Statistics show that the expectation of life of an individual suffering from diabetes can be made practically the same as that of one without diabetes. I am assuming that the patient will follow the prescribed diet and when necessary take insulin.

Not every sufferer from diabetes requires insulin. In this disease there is an inability of the body to take care of sugar. Excessive amounts of sugar accumulating within the body are dangerous. This defect can often be corrected by dieting. But if the excess in the urine or blood continues after carefully restricting the diet, insulin is necessary.

The diet is determined by the age, occupation and weight of the individual and his ability to burn sugar. Bread and other starchy foods containing these substances, are not permitted.

Daily True Story

Grudge Fight

THE SMACK OF LEATHER on flesh has a vicious sound. It seems to bring to the surface every abysmal instinct of man, the blood-lust of forgotten ages in the caves, of conquests hand to hand, before the age of steel.

And the smack of gloves had been almost like the chatter of machine guns for three full rounds in the arena. Billy Melarney the champ, was having things all his own way. He hooked, jabbed, slugged at the battered face before him. Once in the first round, twice in the second and again in the third, he'd jammed home blows that knocked Jimmy Foster from his feet.

Once the arm of the referee swung up to the count of nine before Foster put starch in his knees, a ramrod in his back and got up to stumble into a clinch and hang on until his head cleared, until he could pick out which one of the galaxy of dancing Melarneys he saw before him was the one of flesh and blood th[illegible] over those stinging, ripping rights and lefts.

It was a brutal, cruel picture. All prize fights are that way, but this one for the title was even more bitter than the normal fight. It had been ballyhooed as a grudge fight. It had been given all the build-up that expert publicity men of arena staff could bring into play to pack the house.

And the result showed in the house. Every seat, from ringside to topmost balcony was jammed with men—men whose eyes watched every blow that carried its component of nerve deadening power, of pain packed lightning. And that crowd howled now, as crowds once howled in the arenas of a long forgotten age—for the kill.

The bell for that third round found the Arena a bedlam. He'd never come up for the fourth—the wise ones said. Even the men whose money had been bet at the odds on Foster were willing to let a decision stop the fight. Not even an Arena fight fan, taking his blood-lust vicariously, could ask another human being to come back for more of the punishment dealt out by the piston punches of Melarney.

A GHASTLY FIGURE

But the bell rang for the fourth, and a ghastly figure came out to the center of the ring. And somehow that figure flitted through the round. It even began to seem that the tremendous speed of those first three rounds had taken some of the steam out of Melarney. The fifth followed, and the sixth. Still the crowd howled for the kill, and yet in the savage cries there was a grudging admiration for the chilled-steel courage that kept Foster boring in.

"I hit 'im with everything but the ring posts," Melarney growled to his seconds in that minute interval between the sixth and seventh. "A guy like that ain't human. I——"

"Aw, can it," countered Bulk McCarthy. "Go in and get that guy"——and then the bell.

But Melarney didn't get him. Instead, he began to find himself taking more than he gave out. A dazed, almost awed look spread over his craggy features. And the mob, sensing an exhibition unparalleled in the history of the Arena, were shouting now for Foster, for the man who'd showed them all that he could take it.

And strangely Foster, fighting on, played only for the body. No blow of his went home on the handsome, even though brutal, granite sculpturing of the face of the champion.

It had to happen, that which happened in the tenth.

Melarney's knees buckled. He crumpled to the floor. And the crowd knew, fight crowds know, that when they fold the resin that way there's no hearing of the words "nine———a—n—d— the words "nine—and you're out."

The greatest fight of the year, the crowd mumbled, fighting its way for the exists. The gamest guy in shoes, that Foster . . . But the crowd didn't see down in the dressing rooms. They didn't see a trim girl kneeling beside Foster while trainers tried to patch that battered face into some semblance of human form. They didn't see her lean suddenly over and kiss him full on those swollen, lacerated lips. They didn't hear her say:

ALL IN FIFTY WORDS

"Jimmy boy, I almost wish it could be your way. Not almost, Jimmy, I do wish it could be your way"—then she was gone.

Midge Crowley, who was Jimmy Foster's friend as well as his manager, had something to say.

"You're the biggest sap. You ——"

But Jimmy Foster told it all in fifty words.

"You don't get it, Midge. She's dead in love with Billy. She thinks he's the rising sun, and moon, and stars. She wants him out of the fight racket. He'd promised her he'd quit if he was ever licked. And, Midgie, I had to lick him, for her, don't you see?"

What even Midge Crowley didn't know was what Jimmy Foster did with his end of the purse. He didn't know that all of it went to buy that diamond bracelet that was the most gorgeous of the wedding presents received by Betty Callahan when she became Mrs. William Anstruther Melarney.

Perhaps it was just as well.

Probably Midge Crowley wouldn't understand.

Grooming

Putting Glimmer on the Hair

CAMOMILE TEA will impart golden glimmers to blonde hair that has gone dim. Take a heaping teaspoonful of the camomile leaves, steep slowly for five minutes in a quart of water, cool and strain. After the hair has been shampooed, while it is still wet, hold the head over a wash basin, trickle on the tea, moving the hair so as to distribute it. Keep dipping it up from the bowl, pouring over the glorious crown again and again.

X-Ray for Moles

MOLES are harmless blemishes, as a rule. Yet one among millions may be a mischief maker. That's why it isn't safe to experiment with home remedies for their removal. Skin specialists have various means of exterminating them, the X-ray, the electric needle, the freezing process. When the work is done by skillful hands, no scar remains. Warts vanish if they are touched every day for a week with a drop of castor oil.

Seek an Expert

GIRLS WHO fell before the frenzy of platinum hair are now trailing out in halo splendor of copper-bronze locks. The transition process is not simple, can only be attained by the expert who thoroughly understands the actions of chemicals that are used in dyeing and beaching.

NEW POLICY AT MET

Publix De Luxe Productions to Supplant Fancho Units; Better Pictures Promised

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

In moments of peril a good commanding general first protects his line of communications and then plans for a change of base. While there is nothing military even remotely connected with the theaters (except, possibly, Publix ushers) there is still going on a stragetical re-allignment of operations along the whole battle front of filmdom. Boston's biggest and most garish of cinema temples, the Metropolitan, sensing the changing attitude of its best customers, has entered upon a new policy. It is a three-fold departure from time worn expedients.

* * *

Henry Taylor

First, among the innovations, is the dumping of what has been called the "unit" shows. In their place is to be presented Publix de luxe productions, home made and custom made. It is not meant by this that they are locally contrived with local talent. But they are to be Publix productions, created by Publix and directed by the most brilliant talent the Paramount organization can gather into the family fold. In principle as well as in fact, this means the Fancho and Marco units have been tossed out of the Metropolitan and that in the weeks to come only Publix owned and directed stage shows will crowd the ample stage of that playhouse. To bring about this perfect program, Manager Henry Taylor is now required to spend three days a week in New York looking over and passing judgment upon future prospects. Following Mr. Taylor who makes the selections goes Floyd Bell for another two days to check up on the astute Mr. Taylor and gather first hand knowledge for purpose of local publicity. It will be seen that by this new arrangement Mr. Taylor and Mr. Bell have become weekly Boston-New York commuters.

* * *

New Screen Policy

There are alterations, too, in the new film policy at the Metropolitan. Formerly, feature pictures were taken as they arrived—usually with Paramount approval but not always in the best of taste for the Hub's principal de luxe theater. Under the new arrangement there will be friendly, as well as business, tie-ups between Paramount, Warner Brothers and Fox, with the first choice of product from these studios allotted to the Metropolitan. This, at least, should give the ardent picture fan fairly good reason to sit up and take notice. While the new policy promises a better stage show, it also clears the road for better pictures. This extenuated plan of capturing for the Metropolitan the best of the cinema output of three outstanding producers may be set down as the second movement in a determined campaign to boost business.

* * *

Sevitzky Benefits

But there is still a third step—and this brings Fabian Sevitzky into the picture. This gentleman who claims—and the truth of it has been established—to be something of a cousin to the distinguished conductor of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, has successfully contrived (perhaps connived should be the word) to transform the Metropolitan crew of instrumentalists into what is now recognized and accepted as the best orchestra in the far flung Publix chain of indoor places where people congregate for recreation and fun. Under the new plan, Mr. Sevitzky is likely to face heavier duties, just as he did a week ago, when, for the first time in a picture house he conducted for a tabloid grand opera "Aida." This was a speculation of course but it was not lacking in imagination. In the new Paramount-Publix stage productions Mr. Sevitzky may be depended upon to hold his own place in the spotlight.

RATTLING THE SKELETON

John Barker, lusty baritone of "Face the Music" at the Shubert, having won the Rubenstein gold medal for voice culture at the Conservatory of Music in Chicago, gave up a promising career as a concert singer to become a chorus man in Mr. Ziegfeld's "Sally" company. That was his first and last job as a member of the chorus.

Rachmaninoff in Recital at Symphony

By MOSES SMITH

Sergei Rachmaninoff, playing in Symphony Hall last night before an audience which was far from filling the hall (Headline: Hard Times Hit Russian Pianist), selected a remarkable program of six numbers each of which was of the character labeled "fantasia."

There was the Scriabine Sonate Fantasy to open; there followed the Haydn C major fantasy, three Fantasy Pieces of Schumann, Chopin's great Fantasy, Beethoven's "Sonata like a fantasia" (the "Moonlight") and finally, Liszt's "Fantasia like a sonata." The program was thus also unconventional in not adhering to chronological order.

Such programs, tempting to look at, often become monotonous in performance. But last night's concert offered the listener ample variety; and with a musician like Rachmaninoff to play it, there was no danger of boredom. As always, his playing was enormously vital and characteristic. One of the few great stylists of the piano, Rachmaninoff has not played a dozen measures before his individuality has been asserted.

He was not consistently at his best last night. But at his worst, he still leaves behind him all save a very few pianists. And he has that supreme attribute of a conscientious "trooper," that he always puts on a good show. He never makes the paying audience suffer because of his own indisposition.

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

Had a talk with Irving Thalberg about Marie Dressler's next. The public is already clamoring for Marie to return from New York and make another picture. They just won't let her rest. "Tugboat Annie," based on a series of stories in a current magazine, is the choice, and it has all the drama and comedy of "Min and Bill." Just so that none of the highlights will be lost, Wallace Beery will do for "Tugboat Annie" what he did for "Min and Bill." It will be good to see the Dressler and Beery combination again. Chuck Reisner, comedy director expert, will direct this excellent pair of troupers.

Golf Gets Under Men's Hides -:- And Takes Away Something -:- Players Sometimes Can Ill Afford to Lose

HERE'S HOW STRIP GOLFERS STARTED

Before an audience whose thrills and wonderment (even amazement) increased as the game progressed, these four merry men set out in Los Angeles for a game of strip golf.

WHEN THE LEAVES BEGAN TO FALL

Then Gene McGee was one down—and something off. His pants, in fact. But he teed with a steady hand and a determined, but flushed face, and the crowd watched agape, wondering what would be next to come off.

BRASSIE NEEDED FOR NEXT SHOT

McGee and McLeod (left pair) felt no chill of the autumn breezes here, but White and Lewis? Well, they felt they hadn't much to lose—even if they lost all.

AFTER THIS IT'S EDEN GARB

White putting on the eighth and crucial hole with his and Lewis' shorts at stake. Just what happened then we needn't say, but somebody went home in barrels. (Int. News Photos.)

Norma Says She Did Not Pay Jessel's Love Debt

New York, Nov. 30 (AP). Conflicting statements were aired today over whether Norma Talmadge, screen star, ... to settle a Broadway comedian's $100,000 divorce settlement with Florence Courtney.

Statements came to light in Supreme Court that Miss Talmadge, threatened with an alienation of affections suit by Miss Courtney, guaranteed the payment Jessel promised his wife before she obtained a Reno divorce last month. Miss Talmadge issued a denial.

The statements filed in Supreme Court as the result of a dispute between two lawyers ... Miss Talmadge ... needed ... that Jessel would pay ... Los Angeles ... property settlement. JOB INSURANCE O. K.'D BY A. F. L.

Cincinnati, Nov. 30 (AP). Told that "we have warned employers we could wait no longer to restore hope and revive the spirit of the masses," the American Federation of Labor convention today approved plans for state unemployment insurance systems paid for by industry.

The vote came after a full morning of debate. Only three delegates voted against the proposal in a show of hands.

By its action the Federation is committed to work in each state for a system of unemployment insurance supported financially wholly by industry.

British Army's Dinky Little Hat and Frills May Change World

By ROBERT E. ROGERS

R. E. ROGERS

IT LOOKS AS IF the British Army has beaten Mrs. Lucia Ames Mead and the World Peace Foundation at their own game. The British Army has taken the one decisive step calculated to destroy the glamor of militarism, to retire the soldier to unemployment and the dole, and to reduce the entire population to the drab realities of industrialism and commerce

The British War Office has invented a new uniform' I haven't seen any pictures of it yet, but from the printed account it must look something like one of the Godey Lady's Book bathing costumes for the year of the Big Panic no, I do NOT mean 1929, I mean 1873—or one of the newer ladies' bicycling costumes in Grover Cleveland's second administration

The main feature seems to be plus-fours or plus-eights, such as are being abandoned on our own links, which drape in rich and harmonious ballooning curves over high gaiters, such as the Black Watch wears, spatterdashes and leggings such as our own navy men wear on parade when they pull the funny little cannon by strings

Queen Must Have Chosen Hats

Then there is a smart modern jacket with turn-down collar and brisk revers, a blouse presumably with turn-down collar and no necktie. The empty space will probably be filled up with medals, since there is nothing quite so naked when unadorned as a man's neck. To top it all, what the English call a deer-stalker hat, meaning what we mean by a soft felt, with a rolling brim and a saucy pinched-in crown. This comes as something of a shock, but one indeed might have expected something interesting in the way of a hat. The regiment on which all this dog is to be tried out is no other than the Queen's Own Royal Regiment of Light Infantry. Probably Queen Mary picked the hats.

Well, as a uniform it's going to look something very domestic and soothing for a-walking out with a 'ousemaid on the 'oe. Aged cooks and nurses and even bar-maids can sniff and snort at their granddaughters and grand-nieces, meeting them on parade with their sheepish golfers, since they can remember walking out with tall and proper men who were poured into the tightest of striped trousers strapped below the heel and the extra-tightest of scarlet tunics with buttons all up and down like a bell boy's and a pill box hat worn on the left ear and a limber switch.

That is what British so'jers were like when young Mr. Rudyard Kipling was singing "Tommy Atkins" and such like. But even then he was lamenting the degeneration of the British uniform, of brass buttons and pipe clay and spit-and-polish, since the old days . . .

The men that fought at Minden, they had stocks beneath their chins

What's War Coming to Next

The same kind of stock that Gen. Pershing still persists in wearing conspicuously, although the American army long ago [illegible] comfortable British roll collar.

[illegible] fought at Minden, they 'ad buttons up an' down,
[illegible] dozen of 'em told
[illegible] 'em bright as gold.
The men that fought at Minden they was armed with musketoons,
Also they was drilled by 'alberdiers . . .

I suppose the new uniforms will have new weapons to go with it. Mr. H. G. Wells once envisaged the time when war would be conducted by a dozen elderly gentlemen with a luncheon basket and various high-powered lethal weapons. He didn't say what his new Exterminating Squad would wear, but I imagine that the new costume would be very comfortable and suitable for operations with atomic projectorscopes and X-rays and N-rays and Vitamine D Emanations and all the other things you read about in the Popular Science Monthly.

The glory went out of the war, anyway, when they replaced the scarlet with khaki. They did their best to make up for it with tricky and swank tailoring—and the British military tailor was the swankest in the world—but it was no go. Peace creeps imperceptibly upon us, the world itself becomes drab and Ames-Meadish, and I suppose that these costumes will have to be accepted as uniforms, even although they appear to be designed by some waggish Punch artist as a kind of Mr. 'Orrock's shooting dress.

The old uniforms must have been the most uncomfortable in the world, even though they made up for it by being infinitely gorgeous. Take the lobsterbacks whom the British sent over here. Or the Hessians that helped them. Or the Prussians of Frederick the Great. They fought in dress uniforms. The gallant men who were decimated at the taking of Bunker Hill wore thick woolen uniforms, scarlet at that, on a June day.

What We Looked Like in War

They carried full marching equipment and extra rations and ammunition. They were probably pipe-clayed and powdered, according to regulations. They advanced in close formation. They "presented their pieces" instead of aiming and picking off their men. What chance had they against men in shirt-sleeves, whose commander wore a dressing gown?

I have often wondered what a dress uniform looked like after a two-day battle. Or on a retreat? But we do know what they looked like on a retreat, for we have paintings of the French army coming out of Russia. And a sorry band of ragamuffins they looked. Including Bonaparte. I have often wondered how the Hessians kept on those high mitre-like hats. Or the Imperial Guard of Napoleon those high bearskin shakoes. Or our own men of 1812 those high absurd busbies and shakoes with the plumes. Sanity begins with the Cl[illegible] War, so far as uniforms are concerned. We thought it had reached its apogee in the World War. But apparently there are lengths to which it can still go.

I look forward to the day when the British army and the American army as well, provided the pacifists leave us any will go out to battle dressed like so many golfers or lawn tennis experts. Their cavalry will be motorcycles. They will carry their ammunitions in their golf bags, tee off properly and drive explosive death into the enemy. No enemy in the world will be able to stand up against the Tilden or the Wills' service.

And they will be dressed properly for war, even to the proper kind of underclothing, that gives and stretches in the proper places. See advertisements!

Brookline Man Held in Probe of Blaze

Burton W. Shaw, 54 of Alton rd., Brookline, will be arraigned in Quincy District Court in connection with the alleged incendiary fire which destroyed a house in Bicknell st., North Weymouth, late Monday night. Shaw was arrested late yesterday by Weymouth police and officials of the State fire marshal's office and released in bonds of $2500.

Society to Hear Fire Official

A lecture on the Boston fire department will be delivered tonight by Lieut. James J. Donovan of Boston fire headquarters before the members of St. Catherine's Holy Name Society, in St. Catherine's Hall, Summer st., Somerville. Three reels of motion pictures of the fire department in action will be shown.

The Theta Delta Chi Fraternity at Tufts College acted like a bunch of [illegible] instead of sensible people, Judge [illegible] N. Chandler [illegible] Lawrence [illegible] on a man[illegible]

Charles F. Glennie [illegible] the Tufts student [illegible] held for the grand jury on a charge of operating an automobile dangerously, both charges growing out of a fraternity initiation on the night of October 21.

It was an "asinine [illegible]" Judge Chandler asserted in making his findings and he said he regretted there was no way to punish the initiating society.

According to testimony, Glennie and 15 other candidates for the Theta Delta Chi were taken blindfolded to Gloucester on the night of October 24 and pledged to walk back to the college in Medford.

Glennie said he arrived late the next afternoon and started for his home in North Andover by automobile but was "in a daze" following the all-night initiation.

His car was in collision in Andover with one operated by Martin B. Hartshorn of Reading. Charles F. Read, 67, of Reading, who was riding with Hartshorn, was fatally injured, and Hartshorn also went to the hospital.

EVERETT FIRE DRIVES OUT 11

A two-alarm fire, of suspicious origin, in an unoccupied tenement house in Lewis st., Everett, early today drove three families including five children from adjoining dwellings.

Officials expressed opinion the blaze was incendiary and the State fire marshal was asked for an immediate investigation.

HIT-RUN WOMAN FINED $50

Mrs. Florence M. Rollins, 26, of Maplewood st., Watertown, paid a $50 fine for dangerous operating of an automobile and was given a suspended sentence of two months as a hit-and-run driver today when arraigned in East Cambridge court.

Admission that she went away without identifying herself after her car had struck a husband and wife the night of Nov. 16 was made by Mrs. Rollins, who said she had continued on because she was "so nervous."

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Ryan of 45 Trowbridge st., Cambridge, were crossing Massachusetts ave., at Norfolk st., Cambridge, when struck by the machine. He was cut and bruised but Mrs. Ryan is still in the hospital with a broken leg, the court was told.

Books and Dramas to Be Reviewed

Sisterhood of Temple Ohabei Shalom, Brookline will offer to its membership and their friends a series of four reviews of the leading books and dramas of the season, beginning January 6, and continuing every other week on Friday afternoons. Mrs. Miriam Franc Sjirbell, former instructor of English at Simmons College, is to conduct the course of lectures.

Mrs. Arthur A. Cohen is chairman of the committee in charge of arrangement of the programs.

Keefe Is Freed of Kiss Attack With Gun

Henry T. Keefe of Holland st., Somerville, an ex-convict, may have carried a revolver. But if Mrs. Beatrice Mutty of Vinton st., Melrose, received any kisses or caresses from him, it was not at the point of a gun, as she alleged at Keefe's trial.

In a sealed verdict opened today in Middlesex court Keefe was found not guilty of assault with a dangerous weapon on Mrs. Mutty, but was found guilty of carrying a revolver.

Mrs. Mutty testified that Keefe forced her companion from her car in Melrose on the night of November 3 and pressing a revolver against her side, forced her to drive him on a trip that included a stop at a Boston speakeasy.

Keefe, acting as his own attorney, said the ride was a very sociable one and that he was arrested just as he [illegible]

Lawrence, Nov. 30 (AP)—Rayne scored a victory over Fairweather in court today when the latter failed to appear in a suit brought by Thomas H. Rayne of Lawrence against James D. Fairweather of Andover, involving the purchase of $30 worth of lumber.

STOCK WASHING DISCLAIMED

Leo E. Merchant, Boston broker, government witness at the trial of three men on charges of conspiracy to steal in connection with the sale of Medford Trust Co. stock, was subjected to long cross-examination today in Middlesex Superior court.

Merchant testified he never made "wash sales" for Herbert S. Mabey of Newton, one of the defendants, for the purpose of establishing a price. The government alleges the stock was sold to the public at prices far above its value.

Women who bought stock are expected to be the next government witnesses. Besides Mabey the defendants are Harry R. Coshnear of Newton and Samuel Coshnear of Brighton. A fourth defendant, Thomas F. Manning, was found not guilty by a directed verdict yesterday.

[illegible] D. Stone [illegible] Agent Allen [illegible] of Philadelphia, who testified [illegible] obtained evidence [illegible] by wire-tapping [illegible] his Washington office. [illegible] was made by [illegible] when Stone asked the [illegible] he recognized [illegible] on the phone.

Judge Lowell rose on the bench and [illegible]

"This is not the Anglo-Saxon method of obtaining evidence. I'm going to tell the jury in no uncertain terms what I think of this plotting to get evidence in liquor cases."

Stone interrupted, "Your Honor must be aware that evidence obtained in this manner has been previously upheld."

WIRE-TAPPING UPHELD

"Nevertheless," Judge Lowell replied, "I am going to tell the jury it is not the Anglo-Saxon method of getting evidence. I consider it a very improper way for the government to conduct its business. I don't know the jury's attitude toward this sort of thing, but I'm sure of mine and I'll express it to the jury."

When the Judge had finished Stone said, "I feel I have no choice but to go on with all the lawful evidence with due regard for the court's feelings."

Atty. [illegible] Abbott, counsel for Frederick K. Snow, alleged leader of the alcohol ring and an official of the New England Chemical Co., [illegible] concern, offered a motion to dismiss the case against his [illegible]

[illegible] Lowell replied that the Supreme Court had upheld the wire-tapping methods of obtaining evidence. Stone remarked:

"Yes, and I'm glad to take my stand with the majority of the Supreme court in that decision."

Agent Harold Henneberry then testified to trailing three of the defendants after receiving information which led him to Savin Hill, Dorchester.

ADMIT WIRE-TAPPING

Atty. George H. Douglass, defense counsel, asked the court whether the government intended to show conspiracy as alleged. After repeated objections Henneberry was asked if he had not obtained by wire-tapping the information which sent him to Dorchester.

"I don't remember," the agent replied.

Stone jumped to his feet as defense attorneys pressed the question and shouted:

"Yes, it was by wire-tapping. We admit it."

The other Greater Boston defendants are John F. Philbin of Swampscott, Rodolthe J. Simard, Raymond Wisher and Donald Wharf of Lynn, William B. Shepard of Boston, George F. Newhall of [illegible], Leo Butterfield of Cohasset and Alberte E. Albert of Melrose.

BRISK BLAZE IN MASS. AVE.

WHEN FIRE DEMON SWEPT THROUGH BROCKTON CHURCH

Gone were the peace and the quiet and the soft colors of Brockton's St. Paul's Episcopal Church after fire ravaged the sanctuary today. In their place were the acrid odors of smoke and water, charred pews, blistered wall panels, broken lamps. But over the scene of ruin and desolation still beamed the angels in the warm, stained glass window. And on a wall a picture of Christ on the Cross was unscathed, although panels all around it were burned. (Staff photo.)

The slate roof of Brockton's St. Paul's Church handicapped the firemen at the height of the $50,000 blaze. Here you see them tearing it away to reach the flames. A great crowd gathered to watch them raise their ladders and run out their hose lines.

ONE FIREMAN IS OVERCOME BY THICK SMOKE

Brockton, Nov. 30—One fireman was overcome in a general alarm fire, of incendiary origin, which swept the interior of St. Paul's Episcopal Church, Pleasant st., Brockton, early today, causing damage estimated at $50,000.

Norman Hurd of Engine 5 was overcome by smoke as he battled the flames in the interior of the church, but was later able to return to duty.

Police began an investigation today into the cause of the fire when it was found blazing simultaneously in several widely separated points in the church and are seeking a recently discharged employe of the church.

A remarkable feature of the fire was that a large painting of Christ on the Cross, back of the altar, was untouched by fire, although panels all about it were destroyed.

The Rev. David B. Matthews, pastor of the church, arrived at the scene shortly after the first alarm. He dashed into the smoke filled church and saved many of the vestments. A short time later, accompanied by Fire Chief Franklin F. Dirkinson, he again entered the church and carried out more vestments and church vessels.

Firemen were hampered considerably by smoke which filled the inside of the building and by falling slate, which firemen cut from the roof to get at the flames.

Several times officials called firemen from the roof fearing they would be overcome by smoke which burst in thick clouds through holes chopped in the roof. Gas masks were pressed into service by firemen who entered the smoke filled interior to locate the source of the flames.

The fire was discovered by an early morning worker who rushed down the street to the Central fire station, some 100 yards from the burning building to sound the alarm.

SINGER FORMS LEGION CLUB

[illegible] members of the Suffolk County American Legion [illegible] which comprises delegates from the 38 male and two female legion posts in the county, are to form a Glee Club under the direction of Countess Elektra Rosanska, singer, who a month ago came from Detroit to make her home here in Boston.

It was voted to form the club at the regular monthly meeting held at the Brighton-Allston post headquarters, last night. Commander Oscar Kent presided and more than 75 members were present.

Countess Rosanska, who was given the title of lieutenant colonel in the A. E. F. by Gen. Pershing for activities and singing in soldiers camps overseas, says a Glee Club would reflect credit on the American Legion in Suffolk County.

"If organized soon," she said, "it will give me due time to instruct them, and I trust I will be able to have an organization to accompany me to the Roosevelt inaugural in Washington, where I have been invited to sing.

"I want as many members as possible from the 38 posts. The number is unlimited, but even if there are only 10 members from each of the 38 posts who wish to sing, we would have quite a Glee Club."

With the new VICKS PLAN for Better CONTROL-OF-COLDS ★

In clinical tests among thousands last winter—in schools, colleges and homes—Vicks Colds-Control Plan cut the number and duration of colds in half!—reduced the costs of colds more than half!.. The satisfaction of hundreds of thousands of enthusiastic users confirms these tests.

WHAT relief it is! Fewer colds—saving worry and expense. Less severe colds—saving time out from school, and valuable days lost from work! It is a revelation to mothers—who guard the family's health and direct the budget.

Vicks Colds-Control Plan was introduced last winter, along with the new aid in preventing colds—Vicks Nose & Throat Drops. This new formula is the ideal companion to Vicks VapoRub, standby of mothers for two generations in treating colds—externally. Together with certain simple rules of health, these preparations form Vicks Plan for better Control of Colds.

Vicks Plan can bring to your home more freedom from colds—savings in worry, money, time and health—as it has to thousands of others already. How you can follow it is fully explained in each Vicks package.

Briefly, How Vicks Plan Works

When colds threaten—At that first feeling of stuffiness or nasal irritation—Nature's usual signal that a cold is coming on—use Vicks Nose Drops at once! They soothe irritation and aid Nature's functions in throwing off the infection that threatens. They prevent development of many colds.

If a cold has developed. Vicks VapoRub (now in Stainless form, if you prefer) is the proved, dependable treatment. Just rubbed on throat and chest at bedtime, its double action—continuing through the night—brings quicker, surer relief. Use of Nose Drops during the day adds to comfort—helps shorten the cold.

Gangster Bullets and the Gamest Man

IT'S ZERO HOUR, FOLKS! The Big Push is on! The Big Push to provide a Merry Christmas for all in the blackest year of American history, when even those of us who have jobs scarcely can manage to make both ends meet and only are one jump ahead of the sheriff. Bad off as practically all of us are can we let somebody's mother, father, brother, sister, child feel the pinch of want, hunger's gnawing, the freezing cold? Not by a jugfull! The clarion call for the Xmas Basket Fund is sounding. C'mon folks—Over the Top! Your first chance will be at the Arena next Monday night when Ernie Schaaf, the Wrentham Dynamiter, crawls through the ropes against his erstwhile conqueror Unknown (but now very much known) Winston in a battle for the New England heavyweight championship. Many of us saw the Black Thunderbolt knock out Walter Cobb and Billy Jones in the same ring. You saw the Big Brunette edge out Schaaf, a pronounced favorite. This time Winston says he will land the sleep slam on Schaaf. But the Blonde Adonis says he has regained his full fighting form and this time he will knock the big Hunk of Anthracite for a goal. There will be no cream puff boxing when the giant black man and the giant white man answer the gong next Monday night. The very air will be full of mansized polthogues Get your seats for the Big Shindy while the getting is good, fans. Allons! Over the top for the Xmas Basket Fund!

BLAME THIS ON Shanty Hogan, the great Giant backstop, who told it at the reunion of the South Junior High of Somerville, the other night. One afternoon at the Polo Grounds John McGraw sent Andy Cohen, the Jewish star, in to bat for Hogan.

AMID THE WHIZZING pucks, the swooping forwards, the swinging shillelahs and cracking conks in the Garden, last night we watched old Ching Johnson and marvelled. Seven years on the Rangers, as many more on other hockey fields, the most cracked up athlete in captivity with an anatomical chart showing no spot from the top of his partly bald shining dome to the shining blades of his skates that has not suffered injury some time or other, and still just as great a hockey player as ever. We thought particularly of the day we sat in the operating room of the late Dr. Wilfred G. Fralick and watched the noted surgeon set Ching's broken collar bone. That was only one of numerous operations Fralick performed on Johnson After Ching had left the doctor remarked

"Yes, I've only seen one man more stoical under pain," continued the famous doctor. "That was Johnny Grosso. I worked two hours and a half, taking more than 40 stitches in different cuts in Johnny's mouth without as much as Johnny giving a single grunt or even showing a solitary sign of nervousness."

Poor Johnny Grosso, later to become punch drunk through ring combats and finally to be snuffed out by gangster's bullets The last of Dr. Fralick's "Gamest Man" was a huddled heap on the sidewalks of New York.

"Ching" Johnson, the noted doctor's second gamest man, goes marching, or rather skating on. Under that shining bald pate Johnson has enough brains to know that getting mixed up in any gangster war is bad for the health.

Five shots, Bill, two fast then three.

"Back fire, Charley?" I said.

Before he disappeared he pointed one long finger at the big open window A great cloud of powder-reeking smoke was floating into the room

With the five shots came the piercing voice of Attie Hall, a famous blues singer. She was sitting at a table with B[illegible] Atwell and [illegible] of the police department. From a [illegible] seat facing the door Attie Hall had jumped to her feet and her high C in a scream which still rings in my ears

He is 6 feet 1 inch tall and weighs 190 pounds. After graduation from Malden high he plans to enter Kent Hill preparatory school and then go to Dartmouth.

Mitchell's Release Leaves Only Three Spit-Ballers

New York, Nov. 30—Announcement of the unconditional release of Clarence Mitchell, who, with Waite Hoyt, was cast adrift by the Giants, calls attention to the fact that the once numerous tribe of "spitball" pitchers is almost extinct

This delivery was outlawed 13 years ago, but pitchers then using the moist ball were exempt Mitchell was one of the few left in the major leagues, the others being Jack Quinn of the Dodgers, Burleigh Grimes of the Cubs and Red Faber of the White Sox

Mitchell is the only left-hander who ever succeeded as a wet ball pitcher. He toiled with the Cincinnati, Philadelphia, Brooklyn and St Louis clubs before going to the Giants, where he compiled a remarkable record for the New York club He was then more than 40 years old Quinn is close to 50 and Faber about 45. Grimes is still under 40, but not very much under.

Minneapolis, Nov. 30 (AP)—Dave Bancroft, former big league player and manager, today was named pilot of the Minneapolis baseball club, 1932 champions of the American Association.

107-Yard Dash Longest Run In '32 Grid Annals

New York, Nov. 30 (AP)—Honors for the longest scoring run of the waning 1932 football season go to Robert Gibb, Nebraska Wesleyan back, who took a kickoff by Oklahoma City seven yards behind his own goal line and ran 107 yards for a touchdown

Gibb's run was the highlight statistically of an interesting season which saw Thomas Cashill, of Nevada dropkick a 55-yard field goal against California Agricultural College, Michael Schemick, of Thiel run back a punt exactly 100 yards for a touchdown against Bethany and Herbert McAnly, of Florida, run 105 yards from scrimmage for a touchdown against Sewanee

George Melinkovich, Notre Dame's big fullback, ran back a kickoff 98 yards in the rout of Northwestern, and Ralph McClure, the Colorado College back who later was fatally injured, ran back a kickoff 96 yards against Utah for his team's only score of the game There were no less than 11 scoring runbacks of kickoffs from more than 80 yards

Cashill's field goal against the California Aggies was only one of many starring performances by the kickers, 18 of them booting the ball through the goal posts from 30 yards or more away

Robert Chase, Brown's brilliant field general, made the select circle twice, kicking a 45-yard placement against Tufts and one from 35 yards out against Holy Cross, the latter in a game won by Brown 10-7. Edward Kelly, of Boston College, and Ray Kercheval, of Kentucky, also booted placements from 45 yards away.

MICHIGAN SEEKS SANCTION TO PLAY ON COAST

TROJANS WANT WOLVERINES IN ROSE BOWL

Ann Arbor, Mich., [illegible]—Athletic Director Fielding H. Yost said tonight that all the other members of the Big Ten Conference had been asked if they were willing for Michigan to engage in the Rose Bowl game with Southern California at Pasadena New Years.

Yost said he expected he would have replies from all the members by tonight. He has no assurance that Michigan will get the invitation to play in the West, but he wished to have the attitude of the conference so that he could return a definite answer in the event the invitation was tendered.

The Big Ten Conference always has been opposed to post season games, but with attendance off this [illegible] for M[illegible] retirement of some of the stadium bonds on which default occurred earlier in [illegible]

CHAPTER XXXVIII

His first blow was a swing that would have knocked me cold had it landed. I side-stepped and started left-hooking to his nose.

Reardon was in a fighting rage then and I had some difficulty in avoiding his rushes, but in the third round the officers stopped the bout to save Reardon from further punishment.

Gen. Ryan then detailed me to promote army bouts, which I did until I returned to New York and was discharged.

When the United States got into the World War I went out on a recruiting campaign touring the [illegible] recruiting duty until I became a member of the Army Physical W[illegible] between us was forgotten.

It was typical of my variegated career that from soldiering I was to leap into the movies, and made my living for some years as an actor.

Kid a Movie Star

My first moving picture experience was in 1913, after my arrest [illegible] on the charge of robbing a princess of her [illegible] had been taken by her husband to give to his sweetie.

[illegible] but depicting me as a rascal, I received $750 a week for four weeks. The company had a hard time scratching my salary together, but the picture cleared $200,000.

I was with Lasky for about a year, in a company headed by Robert Warwick, Anna Q. Nilsson, Wanda Hawley and Jack Holt.

Always a Loser

Starred But Once

My last appearance as an actor was in the part of one of the [illegible] sinners in Cecil B. de Mille's "The Ten Commandments."

Outside of "The International Mistake" my only venture as a star was [illegible]

This was the third play centering about me and all of them presented me in [illegible] colors. In 1903 I met Augustus Thomas at the race track and he said he was writing a play about me.

Lionel Barrymore came to a gymnasium that Billy Elmer and I had at 110 W. 42d st. and for a month or more Barrymore and I were daily associates. He was frankly studying me, to present the character of Kid Garvey in "The Other Girl," Thomas' play.

Last Splurge

In 1921, acting as usual on a sudden impulse, I traveled across the continent to attend the Dempsey-Carpentier fight in Jersey City.

It was good to hear again the roar of the crowds that Jim Corbett used as the title of his life story.

Good again to shake the hands of old friends—Tony Biddle, the Philadelphia millionaire-sportsman, who had me sit with him at the ringside, and have Carpentier pause on his way to his corner to greet me effusively.

It was the last taste of the old fame that had been a more potent stimulant to me than wine.

In their private car I was the guest of Tommy Meighan and John McCormack and after leaving New York went to Chicago, met Barney Oldfield, the famous racing driver and a long-time friend, and Cliff Durant, son of W. C. Durant, the [illegible]

Living as carelessly as ever, I was moving inevitably toward the [illegible] I was still the pet of fortune, the companion of rich, talented men. The word "tomorrow" had no place in my philosophy.

I now approach the blackest chapter of my life story, but before descending into the shadows of that memory I would like to go back over some of the high spots of my trail through the years.

ARMY COACHES HAVE THOSE NAVY BLUES

New York, Nov. 30 (AP).—Taking a leaf from Notre Dame's book, Army's football coaches are singing the blues this week.

Notre Dame, it will be recalled, came to town just about a week ago, weeping copiously because most of her stars were suffering from influenza or hobbling around with injuries.

"We hope to hold Army to three touchdowns," said Coach Hunk Anderson in between sobs.

What the Ramblers did to Army a few days later now is written into the records. Their cripples smashed the Cadet line to pieces; their influenza-ridden backs dashed [illegible] around the ends as though they never heard of the "flu." When it was all over there was a three [illegible] down difference between the two teams, but Notre Dame was not the loser.

Now it's Army's turn. With the Navy game four days away, Cadet coaches point to an injured list that includes Ken Fields, Felix Vidal, Tom Kilday, Pete Kopcsak, Lincoln and a few more.

Fields and Kilday both reported for practice yesterday but the others still were under the care of the team physician. Even should they be able to play against the Tars at Philadelphia Saturday, Army coaches said they would be unfamiliar with the new plays developed just for the service duel.

A [illegible] field and a biting cold cut sharply into Army's contemplated workout yesterday and most of the afternoon was spent in drilling the kickers and [illegible]

Meanwhile a capacity crowd for the game was assured when it was announced that every one of the 78,000 seats in Franklin Field had [illegible]d.

Harlow's activity in the movement, however, drew the fire of the administration.

"This so-called revolt, or rump organization, is largely the work of one man, Bob Harlow, our former tournament manager," he said calmly as he blew circles of smoke. "He was released from that job last May for what we believed to be good and sufficient reasons. Since then he has been trying to get the job back, writing a letter only recently to a P. G. A. official suggesting he be re-employed as tournament manager and editor of our official magazine.

"I don't doubt the loyalty of the [illegible] professionals of our organization. We appreciate their value and know that they realize these are tough times. Prize money of tournaments has fallen from the boom years of $90,000 seasons to around $43,000 this season and that isn't bad at all. Last year, the prize money for the winter program totaled $62,000."

HILL AND GRIMM TEAM IN LEAD

Madison Square Garden, New York, Nov. 30 (AP)—The New [illegible] team of Hill and Grimm were leading the field in the six-day bicycle race early today.

One lap behind, three teams were bunched for second place. Audy-Peden, Letourner-Debaets and J. Walthour-Ritter. The rest of the field was spread out far in the rear.

The leaders had covered 1042 miles and nine laps, and 508 laps had been stolen. The morning sprints were featured by wild jamming and lap stealing, but there were no spills.

The field was reduced to 12 teams at 4 a. m. today when the Deigaard, Tavrine and Anke, 17 laps behind, were withdrawn from the race.

Alabama May Play California in '34

Los Angeles, Nov. 30 (INS)—Alabama University may play the University of California at Los Angeles here in 1934.

That probability loomed today following a conference between Coach Bill Spalding of U. C. L. A. and his former pupil, Frank Thomas, now mentor at Alabama, shortly before the Southern team left for San Francisco to play St. Mary's Saturday.

Ladies will be admitted free and some lucky women will be given a grand surprise.

MINORS GET SET FOR MEETING

New York, Nov. 30—Minor leagues throughout the country are having [illegible] to adopt plans for action at the National Association convention, embracing all minor leagues, which is to be held next week in Columbus. Several important matters will be up for discussion, the outstanding one being a zoning and [illegible] be under special supervision of the new officers to be elected.

Lower salary limits and definite efforts to prevent any side-stepping of the same, are also being considered. It is certain that salaries in the minors in 1933 will be considerably lower than they have been for some years.

The usual drive against chain store baseball is expected, but it probably will not get far. Almost every minor league is now dependent to a considerable extent on big league ownership of some of its clubs.

Both the National and American Leagues will hold their annual meetings in this city on December 13-14. A joint session is probable for Dec. 15, but Commissioner Landis has not yet issued the call for this gathering.

N. Y.-Penn Loop Frowns on Salary Limit Rule

MR. BOSTON

By JACK CONWAY

ERNIE SCHAAF AND Jack Sharkey were holding a "sl[illegible] practice session when I dropped into Jerry Buckley's gym [illegible] Friend st. I stepped into the huddle to get a line on the conversation.

"When Winston leads with his left hook," said Sharkey, "drop your head and shoot your own left for his stomach. A left hook is Winston's best punch. There's no reason why he should hit you with it."

Mr. Boston

"Winston also tosses a pretty good right hand sock," chirped Schaaf. "It's a long, looping right."

"He telegraphs his right," asserted Sharkey. "When he tips you off he's going to try to score with a right, and if you watch him closely you will see him pull his right duke back quite a distance, be prepared to pull your head back. But keep your feet set, and when Winston's punch sails past you, counter with your right to the head or body.

"Winston will be off balance and won't have any defense for your right. You have a chance to knock him out with a stiff punch.

"When you're in close, keep barraging with both hands to the body. Don't wait until you're in close to start letting your punches fly. Keep punching as you step forward."

"In my last bout with Winston," said Schaaf, "I could feel him weakening in the clinches. He didn't act well under body blows. I tired in that bout, due to lack of condition. Otherwise, I would have knocked Winston out. I am sure I shall score a knockout this time."

Eddie Mack, Argonne A. A. matchmaker, also took in the Schaaf workout. He looks for a stirring battle when Schaaf and Winston start letting their punches fly at the Arena on next Monday night.

Incidentally, Mack reports tremendous interest in the Schaaf Winston bout. He expects it will set a new high for heavyweight shows in Boston for this year. The fact that the Argonne A. A. and Christmas Basket Fund committee are offering this bout at popular prices of $1, $2 and $3 has made a decided hit with Old Jawn Public.

'Masked Marvel' Arrives

THE NEW "Masked Marvel," who will appear on Paul Bowser's wrestling card at the Garden on Friday night, is in town. Bowser says he has never been very hot for "Masked Marvels," but was induced to use the present "Marvel" on account of the latter's long run of victories. Bowser is curious to see if the fellow is as good a wrestler as his 21 straight victories stamp him as being.

Bowser has completed his card for the finish mat tussle between Gus Sonnenberg and Al Morelli. In addition to the 30-minute semifinal between Jim Browning and "Buck" Weaver, Matros Kirilenko of Russia will oppose Stanley Pinto of Australia, Charley Strack of Oklahoma will tackle Al Peckham, Lee Wykoff will oppose "Bull" Martin of New Jersey, Pat Fraley of Canada will collide with Boris Demetroff, Bulgarian champion; Hans Schroeder of Germany will mingle with Al Beveridge of this city, while the "Masked Marvel" will take on Jack Wagner of Providence.

Hunk today concentrated on teaching his disciples a plan of defense, calculated to halt the Southern Californians in the annual classic at Los Angeles, December 10.

RANGERS WRECK BRUINS IN MELEE

ROSSMEN SHOW GREAT CLASS IN DEFEAT

By BILL GRIMES

During the most thrilling and spectacular game in years, the speed and finesse of the New York Rangers prevailed over the power and combinations of the Bruins to carry the Blue Shirts through to a well deserved, 6 to 4 victory at the Boston Garden.

Manager Lester Patrick never before presented such a well-balanced aggregation as he has under his wing this season. Every player on the roster is a speed demon, a beautiful passer and a most efficient back checker. Also, the Rangers have an extensive repertoire of plays, most of which they executed perfectly against the Rossmen.

For years Patrick has managed to keep the Rangers up in the thick of the fight for Stanley Cup honors with one line and an odd defense man. Now, he has three lines and two outer defenses.

VETS HOLD EDGE

Up to the present, Frank Boucher and the Cook Brothers, Bun and Bill, have retained their edge over the other two forward line combinations. But, no longer is there a noticeable let-down in the Ranger attack while the star forwards are resting.

Since the Rangers acquired the services of Babe Seibert, Cecil Dillon, Art Somers, Otter Heller and Carl Voss, they have been able to use three lines at regular intervals, with Murray Murdock and Butch Keeling filling in with the newcomers. With three strong frontiers, Manager Patrick can now take some of the burden off the Cook-Cook-Boucher trio.

To be beaten by a team such as the Rangers presented at the Garden, is no disgrace. The Bruins scored enough goals to win most ball games and are deserving of much credit for their fine comeback in the third period, which they opened trailing three goals.

OFFICIATING POOR

The game was marked by some poor officiating, especially as concerns holding. Mike Rodden and Bill Daignault allowed the Rangers to get away with about every known wrestling hold. Apparently, the Rangers feared Nels Stewart for Bun Cook was hanging on to the big Bruin center most of the time they were in action. Stewart put in a tough night trying to chase himself loose and it was to his credit that he did not lose his head and mow down a few of the hostiles.

Just before Bun Cook scored the third Ranger goal late in the second period, Dutch Heller should have drawn a major penalty for tripping Art Chapman, who was in position to score, when his feet were pulled out from under him.

Although the fans appreciate wide open hockey, they dislike seeing a Bruin defense player caught down the ice, especially against such a speedy aggregation as the Rangers. The first New York goal was the result of Dutch Heller and Murray Murdock breaking into the attacking zone, while Eddie Shore was in the center zone.

No one man can expect to break up such lightning passes as those used by the Rangers and but for the sensational goal tending of Tiny Thompson, the New Yorkers would have packed the net with pucks.

Naturally, the Bruins were disappointed to lose at home but they have this consolation that they showed the fans the best brand of hockey any Ross team has displayed since the 1929-30 outfit.

WRESTLING WAR FLARES ANEW

By GEORGE W. GRIMM

Boston's newest wrestling war—which promises to make some of those hill-billy feuds in Kentucky look like meetings of the Universal pacifists—flares up again tonight with Steve McPherson staging nine mat matches at the Arena and Charlie Gordon holding forth with nine skirmishes at Mechanics Building.

If you are not acquainted with the facts here is an outline of how the turmoil started. McPherson, well-known promoter from New York, decided that there was room for one more promoter in Boston and consequently moved into the Hub.

Gordon who has been running shows here for two years, was well established at Mechanics Building and staging his melees every Wednesday night.

McPherson picked Tuesday night for his mat offerings and for a few weeks they both stayed on schedule.

Last week Gordon shifted his show to Tuesday night, giving as a reason that he did not wish to run his show the night before Thanksgiving Day.

Desiring fair competition, McPherson announced to his gathering through the Arena loud-speakers, that his next show would be the following Wednesday night—tonight—so that Gordon could show on Tuesday nights.

Then Gordon shifted back to Wednesday, his original night and so tonight the pachyderms will be hauling and tugging in both coliseums—the Arena and Mechanics Building—and the wrestling war will be renewed.

AT ARENA

MAIN BOUT

Pat O'Hara, Atlanta, vs. Lloyd Stewart, Lynn. (Two falls out of three—90-minute limit.)

Passing the Puck

By BILL GRIMES

One of the most disgraceful exhibitions of unsportsmanlike conduct that Boston has ever had to answer for was the booing during the second period of the Bruin-Ranger game at the Boston Garden.

Looking back over years of hockey, both amateur and professional, the writer cannot recall a game which offered as many thrills or produced such a spectacular brand of hockey.

During the opening period, the pace was killing. Both clubs attacked madly and almost every rush wound up with players sprawled out on the ice as a result of terrific body checks. The defense men were stepping into opponents and, although they were usually getting their man, they were taking a severe pummelling.

The Bruins and Rangers were obliged to take a breather for a few minutes during the second period. But just as soon as they slowed up, the fans began to ride them. If the action in last night's conflict did not give the fans a run for their money, it is impossible to satisfy them.

Judging from their caliber of hockey against the Bruins, the second and third Ranger lines will make Lester Patrick's all-star first trio, Bun and Bill Cook and Frank Boucher, hustle to hold the limelight. Dutch Heller accounted for two of the Ranger tallies and Ossie Asmundson came up with one goal and assisted on another, while Carl Coss and Murray Murdock were credited with assists.

The Rangers' speed and rapid passing were too much of a barrier for the Bruins. The Blue Shirts were clicking and their stellar playing must have been a duplication of their work during the 7 to 0 win they scored recently over the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Since refereeing the opening game of the season here between the Bruins and Maroons, Mike Rodden has been jumping around at a killing pace, officiating hockey and football games. Mike was not in good shape last night, as he was suffering from a heavy cold.

Manager Lester Patrick predicts that the success or failure of the Rangers depends upon Andy Aitkenhead, his goal minder. Lester admits that the Rangers have given Aitkenhead some fine protection, but he feels that the former Springfield goalie has the confidence and ability to come through and keep the Blue Shirts up in the race.

Facts You Might've Missed

The Fordham-Oregon State game was played in such mud and rain that Walter Boyle of Fordham is only now receiving recognition for a touchdown he made against the Westerners . . . The score was originally attributed to Andy Pavlicovic, who happened to be wallowing through the same hole in the Oregon line . . . Johnny Dundee announces that he has taken off an estimated ton and a half, or 3000 pounds, skipping rope . . . Not all at once, you understand . . . Alvin Crowder of Washington is one of the best hot weather pitchers in the big leagues . . . because he's still thawing out from soldier duty in Siberia during the war . . . George Melinkovitch of Notre Dame spends his summers riding bucking horses on a dude ranch out West . . . And complete fame has come to Babe Ruth, now that he has had a $10,000 prize bull named after him . . . Leonia High School, which shows you how far we wander afield at times, chalked up 50 points against opponents this grid season . . . But wait. Alton Owen, of Leonia, scored 48 of the 50 . . . the rest of the team contributed two points by scoring a safety . . . IGOE TELLS OF DEATH WATCH night lights from his belt buckle.

"Heinie Rafael," I said, remembering that Heinie, $20,000 ahead of the town's best crap shooters had been having "divvy" trouble.

"Herman. It's Herman," whispered big Judge Crowley.

"Hrman who," I asked.

And from over my shoulder came the answer—"Herman Rosenthal, by God!"

I whipped around and there stood Frank Ward O'Malley. Always the "greatest reporter," he had beaten Swope and Hill and the others in from the ole swimming hole. He hadn't waited for night editor's orders. He had started with the first crack of the four gunmen's gats. Indeed, a reporter, Bill.

KEEP DEATH WATCH

The strange death watch we kept in Jack's the night Becker was electrocuted for that slaying. O'Malley had gone up to Sing Sing as ours and the old Sun's representative.

Each, in ghastly fashion, was trying to picture what Becker was doing. What his last moments were like. Each trembled in the strange excitement of that weird death vigil. Three minutes to go and it would be 5:30 of the morning, going away time in the Big House in those days.

O'MALLEY HAD STORY

"Then why in hell didn't you lead off your story with that line?" stormed the exacting Broadway wit. One of O'Malley's better lines, which never got into type until now.

O'Malley came with the story. We clung to his Poe-like tale as ivy to an old oak. Bill, you'll probably remember that Becker collapsed so pitifully that they asked a Negro companion in death to "wait on Charley." Charley's nerve was gone, Bill, and the Negro said he'd "sit it out until Charley had it over with."

Frank Ward O'Malley! His lute laid aside for all our time, Bill. I can see him now, black silk cords hanging from his nose glasses, handsome, kindly, sweet singer of prose! He was the only great reporter of my time who never talked of himself. I often wonder if Frank Ward O'Malley knew Frank Ward O'Malley.

Odd thing, Bill, they never put him on a big fight story. How he could have garnished the tragedy of the crushing of the orchid man at Boyle's Thirty Acres or the malleting of the ox-like Willard at Toledo! A reporter!

MAMAUX WOULD LIKE TO PILOT OUR RED SOX

By JOE MOONEY

If President Bob Quinn of the Red Sox has nothing better in mind for this week, he might do worse than dropping into Keith's to catch an act billed "Al Mamaux."

The act consists of songs and patter "in one," and is named for its principal, the manager of the Little World Series champions, Al Mamaux of the Newark Bears.

Now President Bob Quinn might like to catch the ace because Al has expressed the desire to take over the management of our Red Sox, if President Quinn has no one else in mind.

MERELY A SUGGESTION

And before we are accused of running President Quinn's ball club again, let it be a matter of record that Al merely suggests that he would welcome an opportunity to try his hand at the Red Sox helm.

Just a casual remark to the effect that he would like to try the job this season. But President Quinn should take a peek at Manager Mamaux if for no other reason than that such dauntless courage in humans is rarely come upon.

Surely you know Al. He has been a figure in the national pastime since his undergraduate days at the College of the Holy Ghost, Duquesne University in Pittsburgh, to a post-war generation.

Al has been connected with the right, or paying end of baseball for the past 21 of his 38 years. He once graced Pittsburgh, New York and Brooklyn diamonds. His fast one, even now in the sear of his baseball life, still has a hop to it, though it is not the adagio of yesteryear.

REMEMBER HIM?

Al also answered to the gaudy tag of the Millionaire Kid Pitcher. Of course you remember him now.

If Prexy Quinn feels that his pilot's berth does not require a golden tenor voice which is certainly no further off standard than is everywhere fashionable nowadays, don't think that Al will go away mad.

Al is an employe of Col. Jake Ruppert, who has made two successful passes with the Newark Bears and the Yankees, and seems in a fair way to come out with his third straight natural when Congress gets around to doing something about beer. So the eating around the Newark table will continue to be good, and Al's place has not been bespoken.

And even if tomorrow, as the song says, Col. Ruppert should say Al were through, the man still has his art. Indeed, in life as on the stage, Al occupies a nice spot in the billing.

SERIOUS ABOUT STAGE

He is serious enough about his theater to make it plain that he is not, as were Pepper Martin, Lou Gherig and Art Shires, just a name back of the footlights. He feels that his offering would go in many towns other than those supporting an International League club.

He has a fast opening number which, if it doesn't exactly bowl the audience into the aisles, does not precipitate a rush for the exits, either. Then he has an Irish specialty ("Boston is an Irish town, you know, and I like to give my public what it wants.") A ringing telephone introduces his third number, Say It Isn't So ("I find a ballad goes very good with the Boston audiences.") and for the ring down, there is "It's a Girl," with a baseball variation.

ACE HUDKINS AT END OF TRAIL

Los Angeles, Nov. 30 (INS)—Sportdom today mourned the pugilistic passing of Ace Hudkins, onetime "Nebraska Wildcat."

The weary but wary wildcat was decisively beaten by Wesley Ketchell, Tacoma, Wash., southpaw, in a ten-round bout last night.

HYSTERIA OVERDONE BY OUR DEBTORS

By B. C. FORBES

New York, Nov. 30—The war debt controversy reminds one of the Florida boom: grossly overdone. The amount involved in next month's payments isn't one-two-three with Europe's expenditures on armaments. Hysteria, not reason, now prevails.

This writer predicted before the subject began to boil that British sterling would be allowed to drop to unprecedented depths as part of Europe's campaign to coerce the United States to forego payment. Yesterday, again, the pound sterling sank to a lower level than ever recorded in Britain's long history.

My guess is that when Europe finally realizes, to quote Andy Carnegie, that "the jig is up," sterling will cease declining. The possibility is that bear speculators in Britain's currency will have their fingers burned.

It will probably be found that the British government provided itself with the wherewithal to pay the $95,550,000 due us on December 15 comfortably before the agitation was unleashed. Britain is not stupid enough to allow herself to be driven into a position where she would have to buy dollars with sterling worth little more than $3 when she could have accumulated the dollars at much less cost in pounds.

MARKET ACTS WELL

Meanwhile, France need no longer hope to pull the wool over America's eyes, need no longer hope to convince America that she is too poor to remit less than $20,000,000 out of her gold supply of more than 150 times that amount. In other words, meeting the payment would involve only two-thirds of one per cent of the French Bank's present stock of gold.

The behavior of our security market in face of so much unsettling talk must be regarded as reassuring. Since the Presidential election there has been relatively little liquidation. More recently the stock market has been phenomenally quiet. Such a lull usually means that a rather decisive movement, one way or the other, impends. December, traditionally, is not a bull month.

But so many new precedents have been established during this protracted depression that maybe this December will bring the unusual.

I hear that a very novel, revolutionary railway car is about to make its debut. It is peculiarly adapted for branch line traffic. Gas-driven, it is built of aluminum and is shaped like a racing automobile—stream-line throughout, tapering off both front and rear, so as to overcome wind pressure ahead and the "vacuum drag" astern.

Whereas existing railway equipment calls for a weight approaching 8000 pounds per passenger, the new aluminum car embodies nearer 600 pounds per passenger, an extraordinary saving in weight and in wear and tear. Rubber is utilized in the construction of the wheels, in order to insure smooth running.

RAIL PROGRESSIVENESS

Commenting on a recent statement here that railroads hadn't been leaders in cooperative research an official spokesman assures the writer that more has been done than generally known. Even so, it is incontrovertible that equipment manufacturers and others outside the railway operating world have often taken the initiative in originating improvements. It is also incontrovertible that railway operators have not earned any dazzling reputation for eagerness to accept new devices originated in the outside.

Perhaps we are on the eve of a new era of railway progressiveness.

The selection of an "umpire," Harry G. Taylor, by Western railroads should, if followed by proper support, lead to the elimination of much costly foolishness. Pride has repeatedly hurt railway profit. Injurious, wasteful duplication of facilities should now be drastically diminished. After all, the public, including railway users, railway stockholders, railway bondholders and taxpayers in general, foot the bill when needless losses are incurred. There have been far too many needless railway losses, we know to our cost.

Jan. 1 promises to usher in a somewhat happier New Year.

CAR LOADINGS SHOW BETTER THAN HOPED

By FRANK H. MELOON

Car loadings, generally considered one of the more valuable indicates of general business, are actually showing better than hoped by the most optimistic forecasters. This helps to account for the firm tone shown in periods of general weakness by the railroad shares. The weekly increase of cars for the period last reported, while constituting a drop of 11.9 per cent from those of a year ago, was the smallest such decline for any week this year. The actual gain of about 7000 cars over the previous week's total was in direct opposition to the usual seasonal trend.

George K. Makechnie, assistant to the Dean of the Boston University School of Education, talks over the Yankee Network at 9:15 this evening on "Economy Versus Retrenchment in New England Education." Mr. Makechnie's topic points to the fact that, while widespread financial and industrial leadership is calling for public economy there is equally strong feeling against having it at the expense of teaching efficiency. Also, we might add, to centering economy moves against the field of education instead of against requirements of politicians, etc.

Chairman A. W. Robertson of Westinghouse Electric & Manufacturing Co. arrives in Boston early tomorrow, preparatory to delivering an address at 12:30 p. m. before the Boston Chamber of Commerce on plans for achieving the long-desired return to prosperity. Mr. Robertson sees the industrial stage well set for recovery and says:

"The time is ripe to move forward in a business way. Prices of everything are ridiculously low. Since June there has been a slow, steady improvement in many lines."

Mr. Robertson says he and other leaders feel they can now conscientiously advise all business men that this is a safe time for them to expend money on improving their plants on the expectation of capitalizing on such improvement in the near future as business becomes better.

An attempted financial study of the debts of large cities comes to our desk and serves mostly as a part of rapidly accumulating evidence that many writers do more typing than thinking. The article compares the debts of large cities on a per capita basis instead of in the ratio of debts to assets. Even the alleged assets of many of our large cities, as compiled from assessment sources, would prove of little value, since the tax assessors' figures frequently differ very much from liquidation values.

The so-called experts who knew so much about gold that they were able to write reams about it a few months ago are now all silent. The $471,000,000 gold we "lost" in the so-called "spring raid" today has been practically all regained. And now it is declared our "swollen" stocks of the precious metal are to be greatly increased in the near future. England is to send us much gold. Ideas of what to do with our gold seem very much lacking.

Closing Is Firm in London Market

London, Nov. 30 (AP)—Trading today on the stock exchange again was cheerful. Rises of about one to two points were registered in gilt-edged securities on covering and strength in sterling exchange. The improvement spread to other sections except oil shares which were easy in sympathy with the Anglo-Persian issues. The closing was firm.

Berlin and Paris Markets Are Firm

Paris, Nov. 30 (AP)—Prices today were firm on the Bourse following the improvement in the pound sterling despite month-end liquidation. Rentes, however, showed further losses. The market closed firm. After the pound sterling had improved, prices on the Berlin Boerse steadied and the closing was firm.

Butterick Company Reports Net Loss

Butterick Company for the nine months to September 30 reports a net loss of $203,280 after taxes, depreciation, interest, etc., as against a net income of $263,631 in the like 1931 period.

—STATE ST.— Hears

That those who are long on stock must be on their guard against a quick drive which will be in the nature of a false move. It could come as a combination of both bull and bear tactics. The former may want to clean out any weakly held accounts marring the technical picture, while the latter would find a sudden dip a big help in covering positions which have become more or less stale. Pressure against one or two leaders may be the tipoff, as it could easily induce a brief, though heavy, period of stock offerings.

Market Action

There is always the chance that what may seem to be a quick drive on prices is the real thing and it would be foolish not to guard against such a possibility. Placing stops at this time is risky because they may be the goal of the large manipulators who want stock for one reason or another.

The best solution of the problem seems to lie in the action of the dual averages. This, of course, entails waiting until a good estimate of the closing prices is possible. If it appears that the averages are going to close under previous important minimums, then long stock should be unloaded.

The critical levels are at 25 on the 20 rails and 58 on the 30 industrials. The presence of support in either of the two divisions which appears strong enough to prevent a closing under the figures mentioned will be sufficiently heartening to warrant giving the list another day or so to prove itself.

This and That

Now that tobacco prices indicate the threat of 10-cent cigarettes no longer worries the big four makers, the bears are conjuring new ghosts that frighten those long on these stocks. The real answer may be that the tobaccos enjoyed their bull cycle when the rest of the list was in a downtrend.

It has very often happened that issues which ran contrary to the general trend, especially in bear markets, suddenly reversed themselves once the main body of stock prices showed a cycle of inflation or deflation had been completed. While not perfect, this rule has a high average.

The problem of transfer, the latest bugaboo raised up by the revisionists, received a body blow from a prominent English editor. He plainly showed that the December payments could be met with gold. Rather obviously obviating the need of foreign exchange operations.

SNUFF MAKERS ORDER EXTRA

New York, Nov. 30 (AP)—G. W. Helm Company, manufacturer of snuff, today voted an extra dividend of $2 a share on the common stock in addition to the usual quarterly disbursement of $1.50. Similar extras were declared in the last four years.

The company said its business had been affected by general conditions and estimated that earnings for 1932 would probably fall short of the total year's dividend declaration of $7. However, in view of the accumulated earned surplus and cash position, directors decided to maintain the extra. Both dividends are payable January 2 to stock of record December 10.

Embezzlements at Record High Mark

National Surety Co. for the first 10 months of this year showed a decrease of 29.3 per cent in number of loss claims received as compared with the like period of last year. There were 14,875 fewer claims filed this year.

The only line of insurance to show an increase in loss frequency over last year is burglary, due, the company claims, to prevailing frequency of daytime robbery of banks and stores. Unusual loss frequency continues in court bonds claims. Never in history have there been so many embezzlements as during the past 10 months.

Moto Meter Gauge Payroll Doubled

Toledo, Nov. 30—Moto Meter Gauge & Equipment Co. has more than doubled its payroll the last few months and now has 7000 workers busy making new products in a diversification program it has launched in adding to its automotive equipment and radio lines.

LIVE NEWS OF WALL STREET LEADERS

BURLINGTON'S postponement of dividend action today served to upset the rail group, overshadowing the excellent showing reported by N. Y. Central in the traffic figures for the last week, which made the best showing for the year. Burlington has paid since the Civil War.

Central's Showing Is Best of Year

New York Central today reported its best traffic showing of the year. Its loadings last week, including cars received from connections, totaled 78,936, a decrease of .2 per cent from the like 1931 week. Loadings in the preceding week totaled 80,697 cars, which were off 10.4 per cent from the corresponding week of last year.

Ward May Market Low-Priced Auto

While sources who follow Montgomery Ward's affairs have no definite information as to reports that the company is contemplating the marketing of a low-priced automobile, they are disposed to give credence to them. In this connection they point to the unwillingness of officers either to confirm or deny the reports.

Foreign Buying Is on a Small Scale

Publicity has been given foreign orders the last few days. Houses doing business with London say foreign business has been small. Many houses are again in a position to take care of their clients' speculative purchases without recourse to bank borrowings.

C. & O. Loadings in November Increased

Wall Street estimates that November loadings of revenue freight on the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway showed an increase of between one and two per cent over November, 1931. It is also believed net income will be sizably above that for the same month last year. The movement of coal this month has been comparatively large, more than offsetting smaller shipments of other commodities.

Investment Trust Switching Noted

Houses doing a large business for investment trusts put out private inquiries for fairly sizable blocks of common and preferred stocks. This was said to be in connection with switching operations usually conducted at this period of the year. The thin market existing for numerous securities of this type on the stock exchange was said to have prompted the requests for private offers which in some instances exceed 1000 shares. The securities required include such high grade preferred stocks as Union Pacific, Consolidated Gas, General Motors and Atchison.

Persistent Liquidation in Tobacco Shares

Fairly persistent liquidation of tobacco shares has been apparent despite predictions that higher leaf tobacco prices will cut the profit margins of 10-cent cigarette producers.

Standard Gas Dividend Outlook

Standard Gas & Electric common is said to be reflecting uncertainty over maintenance of the $2 dividend rate.

—SPECTATOR— Says:

Wall Street has been getting a double dose of inactivity and doesn't like it. Some of the more nervous traders will be tearing their hair if this keeps up much longer. The major news is bearish and the market proceeds to ignore it. The triple bottom of the charts is still holding, but this will mean something only if stocks stage enough of a rally to protect it.

Commodities

A number of traders have been buying commodities and selling stocks as a hedge on the theory the market won't get very far if commodities don't join in.

Then, too, commodities have lost about 90 to 100 per cent of the summer rise against a 50 per cent drop in stocks.

Once this debt uncertainty is out of the way, commodities should improve anyway . . . One important factor in their recent decline has been liquidation of speculative commitments in the December delivery. This will be over in a couple of days . . . There is some thought that the market is being held up by the old strong arm while the debt negotiations are going on . . . This is questionable, due largely to the fact indications have been multiplying in the last month and more that most stocks have been liquidated . . .

Here and There

One of the reasons advanced for a rally this week is that Wall Street wants to show Congress it is really a "good boy." The market probe is going to be reopened soon and, the theory is, rising prices may persuade Washington everything is hunky-dory now and to let bygones be bygones. It would seem the drive for economy may be as much of an influence in curtailing the investigation as anything else.

U. S. Steel preferred continues to be one of the worst actors on the list. Some of the selling is attributed to the recent Pittsburgh banking troubles . . . They say there is good buying in American Telephone, even though its present price is discounting plenty of improvement to come . . .

We hear Europe has been picking up a few stocks in the last two days.

Okla. Gas Utilities Committee Formed

New York, Nov. 30—Following appointment of a temporary receiver for the Consolidated Gas Utilities Co. in Oklahoma, a protective committee was formed here to safeguard the interests of holders of the company's first mortgage and collateral 6 per cent bonds.

William W. Battles of Battles & Co., Inc., is chairman of the committee and other members are Hamilton Pell of G. E. Barrett & Co., W. W. Turner of R. E. Wilsey & Co., J. Dugald White of J. G. White & Co., Inc. and Charles B. Roberts, 3d., of the Pennsylvania Company for Insurance on Lives and Granting Annuities.

Simms Petroleum to Cancel Shares

New York, Nov. 30 (AP)—Stockholders of Simms Petroleum Co. will meet in special session on Dec. 6 to authorize cancellation of 169,271 shares of capital stock now in the treasury of the company. They will also vote on reducing the authorized capital stock to 500,000 shares from 1,000,000 shares.

STEEL OUTPUT UP SLIGHTLY FOR WEEK

New York, Nov. 30 (AP)—Iron Age said today that although steel ingot output had recovered slightly from the effects of the holiday curtailments, "the downward trend of recent weeks in orders for finished steel products has progressed almost to the point of midsummer stagnation, and a poor December for the steel industry is plainly indicated."

Current operations are estimated at 17 per cent of capacity against 16 per cent a week ago, "but it seems certain that incoming orders are not sufficient to maintain even this rate in the final month of the year," the review asserted.

"Hopes for the usual seasonal recovery beginning in January are still entertained, but the virtual withdrawal from the market of largest groups of consumers excepting the automobile industry, gives no assurance that there will be more than a mild upturn, such as was experienced in September and October."

November automobile output, said Iron Age, will exceed that of October, at least by a small margin, and December will register another gain.

Steel prices for the first 1933 quarter are generally an extension of current quotations. Scrap is weak in leading markets, although in the absence of transactions few price reductions have occurred except at Cleveland, where steel-making grades are 25 cents a ton lower.

BOSTON STOCKS MOVE LOWER

Stocks showed losses of one to more than three points in late dealings on the Boston Stock Exchange today. The list started the session irregularly, but started to work downward around midday. American Telephone showed a loss of almost 3 points while New England remained unchanged for the greater part of the session.

Edison Electric moved against the general trend and advanced 2 points, while General Electric eased a minor fraction. Rail shares were weak with Atchison slipping back more than 3 points. Pennsylvania and New Haven were moderately lower.

Eastern Steamship first preferred showed strength and moved up a point. Pacific Mills added a fraction. First National Stores lowered more than a point. Gillette and United Shoe eased slightly.

Unexpected Rise in Failures Index

Unexpectedly the failures index of Bradstreet's Weekly has reversed itself. For the week ending November 24 it jumped to 111.6 per cent of the 1928-30 average from its depression low of 84.8 recorded a week earlier.

Normally failures began a sharp rise in October, which finally reaches its peak early in January. Thanksgiving week, however, with its one less business day usually proves a temporary check to the advance. This was distinctly not the case this year, the actual number of defaults rising from 408 to 463.

The seasonal increase has been much delayed this year, but the postponement would seem to be adding somewhat to the intensity of the movement now under way.

Monetary Situation Is Viewed

By LEWIS HANEY

(Professor of Economics, New York University)

New York, Nov. 30—Our present monetary situation is the result of past economic sins.

During the war and thereafter, we plunged into inflation. We had much gold, but on top of that we piled a mass of credit, as usual in great war periods.

The banks had most of the gold, but they used it as a basis for expanding loans and deposits. The volume of checks drawn increased enormously, and checks on bank deposits are a sort of credit currency, or paper money.

* * *

All this went along with great and widespread overspending by the people and a huge mass of debts accumulated.

Of course, prices were rising, as both the volumes of money and the rapidity of its circulation were greatly increased.

It is necessary to understand this, because today we are paying the price for the preceding credit spree. The over-expansion of credit currency (including bank checks) is being corrected. The "water" is being squeezed out of currency and securities.

At the same time, prices have come down, chiefly because the inflated credit structure has been deflated, and as bank deposits decline the volume of checks declines.

* * *

We got so much gold during and after the war that our prices would probably have risen even if we had stuck more closely to gold and had not so greatly increased our credit money. But with the piling up of credit dollars on the gold base, prices fairly soared.

Now they are coming back to earth. The general price level is probably not far from what represents a normal relation between gold and other commodities.

But those who got into debt during the war and post-war spree are in bad shape. They find dollars harder to get, not because there is less gold — we have perhaps too much of that—but because their credit is poor and prices are low.

So many people who are in debt figure that if we would manufacture more money, they could get some of it more easily. They figure that if we would they would only have to pay their creditors half as much gold.

* * *

Now if we could make two assumptions, this notion might not be so bad. If all people were debtors or creditors, and if all debts were made when prices were high and dollars worth little, the argument would be stronger.

But I am neither a debtor nor a creditor. I am just a salaried man with a little money saved in the bank and a small amount of life insurance. I think most of my readers are in about the same fix.

To us, the devaluation of the dollar could easily mean ruin. That is just what devaluation meant to large classes in foreign countries. It would cut our money, salaries and wages in two. It would cut our savings and our insurance policies in two.

Most emphatically I deny that we should try to relieve the farm debtor by tinkering with our standard money in a way that would hurt all of us.

It is highly probable that a threatening move to devalue the dollar would at once plunge business into a crisis. Creditors would at once make strenuous efforts to collect their debts so they could get rid of their dollars before these are cut. All business arrangements would be disrupted. In the general crash, everybody would be hurt.

The greatest sufferers would be the wage earners, salaried men and the middle classes in general. The purchasing power of their incomes would be reduced.

* * *

The "dollar revaluators" are much like Bryanism in the nineties. The free silverites wanted more money and to reduce the importance of gold. These notions always crop out in major depressions.

Lead, Zinc Output Higher for Month

New York, Nov. 30—World production of lead and zinc in October showed an increase over the totals reported for the preceding month, according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics. October output of lead amounted to 109,406 short tons, against 99,686 in September and 137,984 in October last year. Of this the United States produced 21,092 and 20,498 tons in October and September respectively.

Output of zinc last month amounted to 69,853 short tons, comparing with 65,463 in the previous month and 84,822 in October, 1931. Of the October total 14,866 tons was produced in this country and 13,005 tons of the September total.

Bloomingdale's Has Increase in Sales

Bloomingdale's department store, 59th st. and Lexington ave., New York, has made 610,248 more sales this year than in the corresponding period last year. The additional sales represented more than 1,000,000 articles of merchandise. Officers of the firm said they expect the large volume of business continue.

LEADERS DROP, WITH TRADING PACE FASTER

New York, Nov. 30—Leading shares dropped through the lower limits of their recent trading ranges on the New York Stock Exchange today, with the pace of transactions somewhat faster. Maximum declines of one to more than three points were sprinkled through the list in the afternoon.

A 5-ct. rally in the British pound turned prices upward from fractions to a couple of points at the opening, but the recovery for shares proved of brief duration.

Although the market picked up a little speed on the decline, there was nothing to suggest more than normal-sized offerings, presumably by tired investment and speculative holders who had been holding patiently for weeks with evidence of gains in values.

Rails, which in the early dealings were up nearly a point on the average, were sold rather freely. Atchison and Union Pacific lost 3 points or so. New York Central, Pennsylvania and Southern Pacific declined about a point at the same time.

Favorite industrial and utility stocks during the September rise were among the heavier shares. United Aircraft, American Telephone, Case and American Can soon lost 2 points or more. U. S. Steel preferred dipped 3 and the common was down more than a point. Safeway Stores was a soft spot, breaking about 4 points. Consolidated Gas, North American, Harvester and Westinghouse Electric were all down 1 or more. General Motors and General Electric moved off.

Mid-week business indices again attested to the seasonal recession of trade, although electric power production and car loadings, after allowance for the Thanksgiving Day intermission, made fairly favorable showings.

BEST WEEKLY SHOWING

While New York Central's loadings were down to 78,936 cars against 90,697 the week before, the road reported its best 1932 weekly comparison with the corresponding 1931 week for the year to date. Volume was off only 7.2 per cent compared with 1931 against 10.4 per cent last week.

Considerable interest was shown in the prospect of a fairly early report next year from the national transportation committee, which will recommend legislative changes aimed at a better co-ordinated and controlled transportation system. The committee will meet again next week, at which time the railroads will submit their side of the case.

This prospect, while generally regarded favorable, was somewhat offset by the deferment of action on the Burlington dividend, which again called attention to the low earning state of the carriers even under slightly improved autumn traffic conditions.

Commodity prices as a whole showed a fairly steady undertone. Standard Oil of New York announced a reduction in gasoline prices in sections of its eastern territory.

Electrolytic copper for domestic shipment is available in at least one direction at 5⅛ cents a pound delivered to the end of 1932 and some copper can be obtained at 5¼ cents delivered for January and February shipment and not improbably for March delivery. Most custom smelters are holding at 5⅝ cents delivered.

Price of 5⅛ cents delivered for December equals the record low of 5⅛ cents delivered in the domestic market made several months ago. Present price abroad is 5.275 to 5.325 cents, European base ports.

Socony Reduces Its Gasoline Prices

Effective immediately the Standard Oil Co. of New York, Inc., subsidiary of Socony-Vacuum Corp., is reducing gasoline prices in various parts of its territory. At Buffalo the tank car price of United States motor gasoline is being reduced ½ cent a gallon and "Socony" brand ¼ cent a gallon. Prices there are based on the Pensylvania oil regions. The company also reduced the tank-wagon and service-station prices 1 cent a gallon in Buffalo. In Providence and Haverstraw tank-wagon and service-station prices have been reduced ½ cent a gallon.

Business Improvement Ahead, Says Traylor

Chicago, Nov. 30—Melvin A. Traylor, president of the First National Bank of Chicago, declared in an interview in his Dearborn street offices today that he "frankly believes" the World's Fair, which starts here on June 1 next, "will be the definite turning point toward better conditions—not only in Chicago but throughout the Middle West."

He also ventured the opinion that financially-entangled Chicago, which is behind in paying the salaries of its school teachers, firemen, policemen, stenographers, clerks and other city employees, will "get back to a thoroughly solvent condition."

Traylor, one of the country's foremost bankers—a man frequently mentioned in the past as presidential timber—declined, pleasantly but firmly, to discuss the national economic situation. Here in the Middle West there is considerable talk among business men to the effect that Traylor would make a splendid secretary of the treasury in President-elect Roosevelt's cabinet.

But Traylor had not one word to say on policies. In fact, all he desired to be quoted on was this:

"The municipalities in Cook county (including Chicago) have been through an unbelievably difficult period. We are gradually getting in better shape, getting our budgets down, and in due course will be back to a thoroughly solvent condition.

"The entire citizenship is co-operating with the administration. Much of the improvement in our municipal affairs can be credited to the Mayor Cermak administration which has had the full co-operation of the citizens committee, headed by Fred W. Sargent, president of the Chicago and Northern Railroad."

COPPER PARLEY IS RESUMED

New York, Nov. 30 (AP)—Leading copper men from various parts of the world resumed their international conference today with reports in the trade indicating that on this, the second day of the conference, they would attempt to clear up a snag into which the meeting was said to have run in its opening session Monday.

Dow, Jones & Co. reported that a rift had developed in the conference. Roan Antelope Copper Mines, it was said, had sent a note to the conferees stating that it would not be represented at the meetings unless the conference agreed it could operate at an increased rate.

On the 20 per cent capacity rate adopted for 1932, Roan Antelope was permitted an output of 23,379 short tons. The company was said to be insistent upon having a minimum allowance of 41,600 short tons for 1933. The company's position was said to be that it could not meet its fixed charges under present curtailment production.

Other copper delegates did not indicate that they were discouraged in their efforts to continue the present production. They pointed out that last year's conference, which finally set the 20 per cent production limit, was temporarily upset over the insistence of Union Minere Du Haut Katanga upon a higher quota. But Union Miniere, also a South African producer, later fell in line and delegates expressed hope that history would repeat itself in the case of Roan Antelope.

Russian Experiment Is Made Conspicuous

By MERRYLE STANLEY RUKEYSER

New York, Nov. 30—The present halting movement of the economic machines in so-called capitalist countries has spot-lighted the Russian experiment in a planned economy.

Furthermore, the current fashion of debt default has to a degree tended to lift Russia out of the outlaw class in connection with the Soviet's repudiation of the debts of earlier regimes to private investors.

Accordingly, Elisha M. Friedman, trained in capitalist management and finance, who has just written a thoughtful appraisal entitled "Russia in Transition: a Business Man's Appraisal," is hopeful of readmission of Russia into the family of nations. He indicates that such a development could give economic stimulus to the rest of the world.

Hitherto, all too much of what has been written about the economics of the Soviets was confused by prejudice, propaganda and the astigmatism of observers.

Mr. Friedman, former business associate of Eugene Meyer, Jr., governor of the Federal Reserve Board, has done a notable job in expressing the accomplishments and weaknesses of the Soviet in terms of authentic bookkeeping. The result is useful, particularly since Russia has already tried numerous experiments which are being proposed elsewhere.

In presenting his conclusion and forecast, Mr. Friedman indicates that the Russian experiment may terminate in "the greatest economic crash in the world" unless greater co-operation is given.

"The world," Mr. Friedman contends, "is an organic unit. When one nation is suffering, be it Germany or Russia, the world as a whole must suffer. And the restoration of Russia to economic life as a member of the family of nations should stimulate industry everywhere."

Western Refiners Cut Sugar

California & Hawaiian Sugar Company and Western Sugar Refining Corporation have reduced price of refined sugar 10 points to 4.45 cents.

STERLING HAS SHARP RALLY

The quotation for London cables soared nearly 5 cents in the early dealing to above $3.20, and in later trading $3.21 was reached for a gain of 5½ cents.

Dealers reported that much of the selling of the pound, which on Monday and Tuesday had been heavy both in London and New York, had lifted. While they could not determine the exact nature of new buying it was assumed that some of it was short covering.

New York banks have put the lid on speculative fliers in the pound, but they admitted that even with the most careful supervision it was difficult to forestall such transactions completely.

The pound broke to a new postwar low of $3.15½ yesterday. It first broke through the $3.30 level, where it had been steadily maintained for weeks, on Nov. 16.

Swedish Match acts on Reorganization

Stockholm, Nov. 30—Administrators of Swedish Match Co. presented to the stockholders a plan for reorganization evolved after a six months' investigation. They recommended election of a board of 12 directors, including two Englishmen. A final agreement with creditors stipulates that the company will pay 6 per cent interest on its debts and a certain amortization depending on annual earnings.

LAMAR CRIME WAVE NIPPED IN THE BUD.

(From the Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

Nightwatch Dick Staatz arrested the bicycle of Charlie Gardner Monday evening. Dick said he had been telling Charlie to get a light for his bike, but Charlie would only answer tantilizingly, and fail to get a light. Another boy was riding the bike when Dick saw it. He took possession of the wheel and started for the calaboose with it. The officer said Charlie gave him a good cussing out, whereat the officer slapped him. He locked the bike in the calaboose, and told its youthful owner he could have the wheel when he got a light for it.

Q. and A. DEPARTMENT

Dear Aunt Bella—

I notice that several tabloid papers pay $2 for the best letter telling "How He Proposed." Why don't you do that?

Constant Reader.

Ans.—

While Aunt Bella is glad to place any complaint or suggestion before the board of directors at their meeting, she cannot hold out false hope to the unfortunate. However, Aunt Bella would be glad to recommend a department soliciting letters dealing with the general subject, of interest to all, "What He Proposed."
